

Meiklejohn: Gimmick-Hating Man of 'Calm'

Olde English Charm of Victoria: It's 'Silly'—Interior Designer

The old English decor of many establishments in Victoria may impress some visitors but to one of Canada's top interior designers it's repulsive.

"Isn't that silly?" said Robert Meiklejohn of Toronto in an interview in his Empress Hotel room where he and his wife were staying on a short visit. "What a point to go to with one of the most beautiful cities in Canada."

Just as bad, to Meiklejohn, is that plastic strip of grass laid recently by the B.C. department of highways on Douglas Street. "The next thing out will be plastic flowers."

All this is reflection, he said, of the seeming dishonesty of the generations that preceded today's youth.

"I have a good deal of faith in young people. A lot of the junk you read about them is a reflection of the people before them."

In business it comes out as something phoney or gimmicky to catch the public's eye and dollar.

But the work of Robert Meiklejohn Design Associates is far from plastic, he said.

It's natural and attempts to have something significantly to do with the history or environment of the area. That way tourists as well as residents can relate to design.

His company mainly does planning of commercial interiors, which he says should actually be done by architects.

"There shouldn't be such a thing as an interior designer," he said. "An architect should do the interior of the building, but he hasn't the time. It's a very involved thing and people are too specialized to do everything."

In designing an interior, Meiklejohn says his goal is to make the store or restaurant stand out, not the design itself. This has to be worked out with the client, and there just can't be a conflict.

That's why he prefers working for businesses rather than domestic clientele. Most Robert Meiklejohn Design Associates' business is done with chains.

The whole concept of the design has to be suitable, he said. "It's practically impossible to come up with a concept of what the wife likes, what the husband likes and what we like, in domestic work. When you compromise, the whole thing is usually a complete mess."

A person's own environment should be an expression of his own taste, however bad it might be, he added.

The interior design of a business operation, on the other hand, is carried out for a reason. "Whereas in a home, just the fact that the client wants to have something is reason enough."

"That's why our business works . . . because we understand what our client is trying to do," he said.

Restaurants are more enjoyable to design, Meiklejohn said. "Store space is engineered for selling. It's a machine — shoving people through to get as much out of them while they're in the store."

"It differs in each city and in each location in the city, even though it may carry the same merchandise."

"Restaurants are more of a challenge. Most are spaces designed so people will enjoy themselves."

Meiklejohn himself exudes an unhurried, natural calm, which must be rare for a person who works 12 hours a day in a fast-moving city like Toronto.

"My apparent calmness is a great asset as far as my business is concerned. The top businessmen I deal with are so used to running around helter-skelter, jamming as many things into one day as possible, that if you do talk to them calmly you get a lot more thinking out of them."

Life's hassles aren't worth worrying about, he said.

"You learn to forget the unimportant things."

And that's something he likes about Victoria — its "casual pace."

"It's relaxing to be treated with such courtesy and not to be pushed and shoved."

Meiklejohn's dream of the future?

"Tiered, spacious living areas (not cell-like apartment blocks) with molded utility rooms to cut expense and unnecessary space."

"Widespread living space is just old-fashioned." Owning land will become less important; it will be the person himself that will matter, he said.

Black Sash Stands Out In S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The 30 lightly clad white women with black mourning sashes stand silently holding placards. It's yet another 24-hour protest on a main Johannesburg street.

Most are young mothers, some middle-aged and a few elderly. They stand without warmth or food, their protest symbolizing those who must spend the South African winter without warmth and food.

They belong to the Black Sash, a human and civil rights movement and one of the few organizations left in this country which protests government legislation and its treatment of the non-white masses.

The movement is restricted to white women, more than 2,000 of them.

They have been opposing the Nationalist party's laws and the effects of its policies for 17 years with scant success.

Black Sash protest in this country, where the voice of public protest has been effectively muted and where demonstrators are regarded as evil, is allowed to continue "only as a front to democracy," says Jean Sinclair, the movement's president.

It began in 1955 when she heard of a plan to load the Senate with a two-thirds majority to ram through legislation.

"That day changed my life," Mrs. Sinclair says. She was then a Johannesburg city councillor and a member of the opposition United party. "I was enraged by the move and from that day I committed myself to fight injustice no matter who it affected, no matter what."

How has the movement fared? It was strong in the late 1950s but membership dropped sharply after the Sharpsville shootings in 1960. Scores of Africans were killed in that small village and more than 100 injured when police opened fire on a reference book protest.

Following the shootings, the government clamped on stringent security measures. What was left of the Sash was a dedicated band of about 2,000.

The Hard Times Of Living With a Comedian

By HENRY ALLEN

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It's a classic line in family fights.

The wife, fed up with just one too many wisecracks or bouts of foolishness, stares at her husband with a spectacularly fatigued irony and says: "You're a comedian, you know that? A real comedian."

One of those wives wasn't Carlotta Monti, though. Actually, she was W. C. Fields' mistress (and proud of it) for 14 years, a wife in all but law.

But Fields was a real comedian.

If that fact made life with Fields difficult, it didn't make it any less charming, loving and sometimes poignant for Miss Monti.

She was in the area recently to autograph copies of W. C. Fields and Me which she wrote with collaborator Cy Rice.

Occasionally flavoring anecdotes with expert Fields imitations of her own, Miss Monti had nothing but good to say about a man who gave her little more than company and laughs.

She even betrayed one of the most sacred articles of the Fields canon when she insisted that the man who said "anyone who hates dogs and children can't be all bad" actually liked both.

"He left a large part of his estate to an orphanage," she said. "Any man who leaves money to children can't be all bad."

Fields left Miss Monti $50 a week, a favorite icebox, and his 16-cylinder 1938 Cadillac.

Even the $50 stopped when Fields' long-estranged wife and their son, Calude, broke the will in 1951.

Fields was stingier in life. Miss Monti's standard birthday present was $100. She earned spending money as a singer and dancer, simultaneously goading Fields into furies of professional jealousy. When she nursed him during a 13-month stay in a sanitarium, he paid her $50 a week. She saved $950 out of it and she bought him a phonograph. Despite the suspicions of Fields (and others), she was in it for love, not money.

So Miss Monti had nothing but good to say about the man who used to leave huge amounts of money lying around his various Hollywood mansions to test her honesty, who once sent her to the bank to withdraw $50,000 in cash and sent his agent to the airport to prevent her from escaping with it.

"Anything he did was a joke," she insisted.

Medicine, for Fields, was two quarts of martinis, a day, sipped slowly, starting with two before breakfast.

"He was never drunk," Miss Monti said.

But the alcohol killed him, as two doctors had told him it would, evoking the Fields response that he's finally found two doctors who could agree on something. Cirrhosis, dropsy and malfunctioning of the kidneys sent him to his last sanitarium, Las Encinas, where friends as always would smuggle booze into his room.

On Christmas day, 1946, Fields called her to his bedside and rasped "Goddamn, Goddamn the whole friggin' world and everyone in it but you, Carlotta."

Moments later, a stomach hemorrhage killed him.

Miss Monti found a job as a clerk with Technicolor, Inc. Today she lives in a two-bedroom flat in West Los Angeles, and paints and writes. Sometimes she drives the old Cadillac over roads she and "Woody" toured.

Civil Group Hypocritical?

SEATTLE (AP) — A number of employees of the American Civil Liberties Union say the ACLU is discriminating against women.

A spokesman for the group, Melissa Garman, said she and other employees picketed the ACLU headquarters to protest the elimination of a position held by a woman, who was later refused another position for which the employees say she was qualified.

Miss Garman also said that there has been a history of problems over wages and other issues at the ACLU and that there have been other instances which point to a discriminatory policy toward women.

ACLU executives have been ignoring the civil liberties of their own employees, she said.

She Dislikes Jailing People

MUNICH (AP) — A kindly, graying woman of 55 has become the first woman in West Germany to head a detective division for a large metropolitan police department. Part of her philosophy is: "Dangerous is the policeman who feels happy when he puts someone behind bars."

The appointment was a turning point for emancipation in a country which for centuries has considered "Kinder, Kirche, Kueche," the realm of women. That means "children, church, kitchen."

For Mathilda Karl it was a personal triumph. She was chosen from among 20 top police officers to head the criminal investigation division of Munich-West, largest district in the Bavarian capital. This makes her responsible for the safety of 300,000 persons.

As "Kriminalamtskaetin," a rank equivalent to a chief inspector, she directs the work of 30 men and two women, including three inspectors. She also rates her subordinates for promotion.

Haering said Frau Karl is "performing brilliantly." He described her as "highly intelligent, energetic and one who never loses her feminine charm."

Sh looks more like a kindergarten teacher than a skilled detective trained in judo. She has had her share of perilous assignments.

Never Carries Gun

Trained in the use of firearms, she has never carried a gun, even though her work in crime prevention took her to the sleaziest of the Munich underworld bars.

In spite of having worked on hundreds of morals cases and other emotionally disturbing crimes, Frau Karl has remained extremely sensitive. She readily admits that it was not easy to adjust.

"For example, it was very difficult for me to put people behind bars and I had to find a solution to give me inner peace. I decided therefore that even as some people suffer from terrible illnesses such as cancer, others suffer from their own character defects. Some of the latter are so ill that they must be put away to protect society as a whole."

"I always feel sorry for the person that I have to put in jail."

Good Reaction

"The reaction of the men under Frau Karl has been very good," says Herman Haering, director of Munich's detectives, who pushed the appointment of a woman to a job heretofore reserved for men.

German police departments have long had women detectives in segregated divisions, with responsibilities limited to the investigation of sex crimes involving juveniles, general juvenile delinquency and crime prevention.

FAMILY SECTION To-Be Groom Blows Nest-Egg Scheme

CARACQUET, N.B. (CP) —

Caracquet resident Jean-Diogene Cormier, 23, says he has "something else in mind" to replace an unsuccessful attempt to build a marriage nest-egg by mailing pleas for cash.

Jean sent about 400 letters to New Brunswickers during May and June asking for contributions towards a nest egg for himself and fiancée Nicole Gionet.

He spent $250 on printing and postage but only received about $35 cash.

"I had about 10 answers with money and five or six without money. Most of those said if they gave me something, later on someone else will do the same thing and it will never end."

Still optimistic he'll succeed in raising cash, Jean refers to his "next project" but declines to specify what he has in mind.

HE'S WET AND VERY, VERY COLD after jumping from the CP ferry Princess Marguerite into the frigid waters off Clover Point Sunday. U.S. Man Leaps Overboard To Seek Asylum in Victoria

A determined San Francisco man seeking political asylum vaulted over the side of the CP ferry Princess Marguerite from Seattle Sunday afternoon in his second attempt to enter the country illegally.

Lawrence Corman, 23, was in the waters off Clover Point 15 minutes shortly after noon. While the ferry circled and a boat from the pilotage office co-ordinated rescue efforts, Corman was pulled aboard a passing U.S. pleasure cruiser and turned over to authorities.

The immigration department said after an inquiry today the man was ordered back to Seattle on tonight's ferry. He will return here for a Sept. 14 hearing with counsel.

Immigration's Douglas Cook said Corman told investigators he had jumped overboard "because people with cameras were taking pictures of me." The American said he had a 4-F draft exemption and was seeking asylum here as an opponent of the U.S. political system.

DEPORTED

Corman was deported a month ago from Vancouver after he crossed illegally through the woods near Peace Arch Park on the border between Douglas, B.C. and Blaine, Wash.

He was charged with evading examination by immigration authorities and ordered deported. This made him ineligible to apply through normal channels for immigrant status, unless there is intervention on his behalf by the minister of manpower and immigration.

A spokesman for the immigration department in Vancouver said this was unlikely.

The department has the option to refer the case to the justice department for more charges to be laid. This also is unlikely in this case, the spokesman said.

Corman told investigators today his parents reside in Boston, but he had no identification. He said he would appear for examination with his lawyer at the Sept. 4 hearing, and would appeal the deportation order expected to be issued at that time.

Corman jumped over the rail of the Princess Marguerite when the ship passed within several hundred feet of the tip of Clover Point at 12:15 p.m. Sunday.

The water was "freezing cold, as usual," a pilotage office spokesman said, and beginning to be made rough by a fresh wind.

RADIO CALL

A marine radio call was issued to all craft in the area, and the pilotage boat sped from her float inside the breakwater while the ferry began a wide circle.

At 12:30 p.m., Corman was pulled aboard the Poppy, a cruiser from Seattle carrying visitors Joe Mulcahy, his daughter Lisa and son Mark, both 13, and Lisa's friend, Vickie Brodine, back to Seattle.

He was met by ambulance at the pilotage office at Ogden Point, carried by stretcher to St. Joseph's Hospital and treated for exposure. Police took him into custody at the hospital and lodged him overnight in city cells.

Corman was turned over to the immigration department this morning. Hospital officials said there was "nothing physically or mentally wrong" with him, but an immigration spokesman said he appeared to be "greatly disturbed."

Dollar Trade Cautious

LONDON (AP) Foreign exchanges reopened today after a week's shutdown but trading was slow and cautious at the outset as dealers operated without a set of internationally agreed rules for the first time in 27 years.

In London, the first European market to open, the U.S. dollar was exchanged between $2.45 and $2.46, which amounted to a cut in the value of the American currency of about three per cent.

The last quotation before President Nixon's momentous action cutting the ties between the dollar and gold was $2.494. That was at the close of business Aug. 13.

Dealers in London said trading was quiet and hesitant.

One London dealer said: "One is at all certain just where things will go."

UP, THEN DOWN

A few minutes after the opening, the dollar strengthened slightly to $2.44 for one pound only to drop back again to $2.45.

In Tokyo, where the opening preceded London because of the time difference, dealers reported trading was calm with the Bank of Japan taking in about $10 million compared with the hundreds of millions absorbed on most days last week.

Prices on the Tokyo stock market moved down again because of the uncertainty over the yen.

In Frankfurt, the dollar fell back to about the level it held Aug. 13—3.4250 marks against 3.4225 previously. Today's quotation indicated a sharp strengthening of the dollar in West Germany compared with the rate of 3.3875 marks that banks and travel agencies were giving tourists at the close of business last Friday.

Frankfurt dealers said trading was slow.

POSTPONED DEALING

Some countries decided to postpone dealings until trends became clearer in major monetary centres elsewhere.

In Italy, banks refused to handle commercial exchange transactions until an official rate for the dollar is set later in the day. Italian banks were handling tourist transactions, though, at the rate of 600 lire. This amounted to a dollar devaluation of four per cent.

France opened a split foreign exchange with two rates—one tightly controlled for government and legitimate commercial transactions, and the other, a free rate for tourist and speculation.

Fee Freedom Offered If Costs Checked

Premier Bennett said Sunday that B.C. doctors can have freedom of action in setting their own fee schedules providing they agree to limit the annual medicare cost increase.

Bennett said he was referring to fee schedules when he said last week in Dawson Creek that doctors can have full freedom of action if they agree to control costs.

"Most people have construed that this freedom of action dealt with the doctors' right to look after their patients and practise throughout B.C.," Bennett said.

"At no time has the government considered these matters. What I actually said is that the doctors would have the freedom of action to set their own schedule of fees, if they agree to limit the annual increase in the cost of medicare."

He said there was no misunderstanding of the speech by those who heard it, but most people in B.C. had the "wrong impression" of the Dawson Creek talk.

Ottawa May Scrap Bomarc Missile Base

OIL THREATENS NIXON'S BEACH

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — A black, sticky film of oil covered 300 square miles of ocean off Southern California today, fouling parts of some beaches and threatening to float ashore on a beach below President Nixon's Western White House.

The slick — believed caused by a retelling mishap between two navy ships — was being kept under surveillance by helicopters.

today, the policy document likely will provide for assigning a squadron of CF-5 ground support jets to NATO's northern flank in Norway.

It may further signal the end of the heavy tank role of the Canadian troops in Germany. Indications are that the present, aging Centurion will not be replaced by another heavy tank when its life expires.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald has said the white paper will address itself specifically to Canada's partnership with the U.S. in the North American air defence command, and the question of bomber defence.

There is a question of whether Canada is arming itself "against an attack which is a decreasing probability," he has stated in reference to what some believe is a declining threat from Soviet manned bombers.

NO NEED FOR BOMARCS?

"Speculation is that the white paper will outline a plan for scrapping the nuclear-armed Bomarc, squadrons of which were installed at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que., in 1963 as part of NORAD's defence against Soviet bombers."

Since then, Soviet strength in conventional bombers has declined in proportion to its growing strength in intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The white paper will elaborate major priorities in Canadian defence policy laid down by Prime Minister Trudeau two years ago.

Big-Four Pact Terms

Times News Services

BERLIN—Major Russian concessions are believed included in the draft of a Berlin settlement reached today by Big Four powers.

Ambassadors of the United States, Soviet Union, Britain and France emerged from a five-hour meeting and announced the agreement ending 18 months of negotiations.

Sources said the Russians agreed to accept responsibility for unimpeded access to West Berlin, favored opening the wall for West Berliners to visit East Berlin, and recognized the ties that bind West Berlin to West Germany.

The agreement will not do away with the wall, built 10 years ago to halt the flight of refugees to the west.

HEMMED IN

East Berliners will continue to be hemmed in by it, unless they are communist officials on official visit, the sources said.

The agreement calling for the lifting of the East German ban on visits by West Berliners, however, will affect some 500,000 who have relations on the other side of the wall.

The Soviet Union also agreed to end harassment of traffic which must pass 110 miles through East Germany to get to Berlin.

In return the Russians would be permitted to open a consulate in West Berlin and there would be a limitation on West German political activity in West Berlin.

The pact must be ratified by the four governments but no difficulties are anticipated. All delegates expressed satisfaction with the results.

DETAILS LEAKED

Details of the agreement were not immediately released but diplomats leaked some of the terms to reporters.

For West Berlin it should mean an end to 25 years of harassment and tension, clarification of its disputed status and the chance for its citizens to travel freely to and from the city, and once more into East Berlin and East Germany.

Sniper Kills U.K. Soldier

BELFAST (Reuters) — A British soldier was shot and killed by a sniper here today, the army announced.

The soldier was on sentry duty outside a mill in the Northern Irish capital's Ardoyne area when he was shot by a hidden gunman.

Earlier today, another British soldier was wounded during a gun battle with British troops two weeks ago had died in hospital.

The two deaths brought to 31 the total killed since the current troubles in Northern Ireland began Aug. 9.

Miss Devlin's past week of day-and-night political meetings, whipping up civil disobedience to the central government in the current wave of violence, may have affected the timetable.

KY'S ANSWER: NO!

SAIGON (AP) — Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky's refusal to participate in the Oct. 3 presidential election plunged South Vietnam today into its gravest political crisis since the Buddhist uprisings of 1966.

Ky proposed that he and President Nguyen Van Thieu both resign from office to pave the way for a new election. He said this was the only way "to avoid the prospects of dark days in the history of the nation."

There was no immediate comment from the presidential palace, but political observers doubted that Thieu would agree to Ky's proposal.

The U.S. embassy, which successfully maneuvered Ky back on the ballot after Gen-

Duong Van Minh's withdrawal from the race left Thieu unopposed, issued a brief statement saying it regretted the vice-president's decision.

Officials at the western White House in San Clemente, Calif., also expressed regret but indicated the U.S. government still hopes Thieu will face more than token opposition.

More than 1,000 young people packed Centennial Square Sunday night to hear a rock concert.

Earlier, about 100 attended a bring-your-own film festival at the YM-YWCA auditorium where six movies were shown.

Break-Ins Net Thieves $961 in Cash

Thieves stole nearly $1,000 from a Gorge Road motel during a rash of break-ins in the last four days, police said today.

American tourists staying at the Jolly Knight Motel, 246 Gorge Road, police said, lost cash totalling $961 early Aug. 19.

Police are also investigating a number of break-ins over the weekend.

A tape recorder was stolen from a Fifth Street home, $100 cash was taken from Ron's Chevrolet Service, 1518 Pandora, and $20 was taken from a Niagara Street home.

Police said some merchandise and cash was stolen from the Beacon Drive-in, 126 Douglas, and an antique clock taken from another business.

Two cartons of soft drinks were taken from the storage room of the Queen Victoria Inn, 655 Douglas and there was an attempted break-in at Gordon's Sporting Goods, 1030 Hillside.

$7,000 Bail Set for Man

A 25-year-old man was remanded in Aug. 31 on $7,000 bail when he was charged with robbery with violence and indecent assault in court today.

Peter W. Shaw, 1590 Verling, was remanded by Judge William Ostler for election of trial method.

The charges alleged the accused took food and money from another man using threats and committed an indecent assault. No amount of money was mentioned.

Police said the incidents occurred about 1 a.m. Sunday. Shaw was arrested Sunday afternoon.

Professor Earns Medal For Research

Prof. Jacob Rempel, 3045 Henderson, will be presented with the gold medal of the Entomological Society of Canada at the society's 21st annual meeting at the University of Victoria Tuesday.

The award is for outstanding contributions to entomological research and for training of research workers.

Rempel taught at the University of Saskatchewan and won recognition for his research on the mosquito which is responsible for spreading western encephalitis, a virus which attacks the nervous system of horses and humans.

In 1941, 600 persons suffered from encephalitis in Saskatchewan, and 44 people died. Many survivors did not recover fully. The disease attacks the brain.

Rempel worked on the research project from 1941 until his retirement a year ago.

Curbs Eyed for BCSTA Chief

Executives of the B.C. School Trustees Association have too much power, says a report based on questionnaires sent to its 510 members.

The association's effectiveness has been under study for a year, with the questionnaires sent to trustees and interviews held with association staff members.

The report recommends the president be allowed to speak out only when policy for a specific occasion has been worked out. If policy has not been resolved, a meeting should be held with top officers of the association.

SIX YEARS

"At the present time, and likely for the past six years or more, various (sic) of the components of the association have not been working in a very co-ordinated manner and at times have worked at cross purposes," the reports says.

One reason has been that wide powers have been given the president and executive, although they work only part time.

"In addition, executive members very often have well-known political and professional biases which do not sit well with at least a portion of the members," says the report.

"All of the foregoing problems have existed in lesser or greater degrees in each of the six years studied and have, in the opinion of this present committee, tended to render less credible some of the activities and public pronouncements of the presidents of the day and their executive."

FULL TIME

The report recommends appointment of a full-time executive director to take a major share of the association's responsibility.

Other actions urged by the report are withdrawal of support for the Educational Research Institute of B.C. and a decrease in the amount of paper mailed out to association members.

Five trustees worked on the report, including Greater Victoria trustee Peter Bunn.

Bunn said the trustees who responded said they wanted association policy to reflect a consensus, not the political philosophy of the president.

The strength of the education lobby in the provincial legislature should also be increased, trustees indicated.

The review of the association's activities was initiated by Peter Powell, after he was elected president last fall. The report, as prepared from trustees' responses, has been referred to the association's incoming executive, which will be elected at the annual meeting in October.

P.E.I. COURT TEST TUESDAY

Farmers Union Chief Defiant

By DAVE BLAISE
CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union, says he will plead not guilty when he appears in court Tuesday in Summerside on a charge of conspiracy to intimidate.

The charge was laid Saturday when protesting Prince Edward Island farmers blocked the main access route to the island for the second straight day by moving tractors, trucks and other vehicles onto the Trans-Canada Highway outside the CN ferry terminal at Borden.

Mr. Atkinson told a news conference today that RCMP were under orders from the provincial justice department to lay a charge and the farmers knew when they demonstrated Saturday an arrest would take place.

The farmers "allowed" the arrest to be made to expose "the arrogance and autocratic tendencies" of the Island government in handling a dispute with farmers, which centres on government farm policies.

Mr. Atkinson said he was not sure of the exact meaning of the charge against him but described it as "very serious." A conviction could mean a substantial fine or jail sentence.

He was jailed briefly after his arrest, then released on $500 bail pending his court appearance.

The Saskatoon organizer spoke at the news conference with Brian Laughlin of Sherbrooke, director of the provincial NFU district, which began highway demonstrations Aug. 12.

Neither would disclose the next move planned by farmers. But Mr. Atkinson said there would be surprising and interesting developments although he doubted there would be more highway blockades such as those at Borden.

The issues in the dispute include lower registration fees, long-term, low-interest loans, legislation to abolish corporate farming and the right to use marked gasoline in farm trucks.

Highway demonstrations started Aug. 12 with farmers marshalling tractors at key points across the island and calling for a meeting with the premier.

Bloody Getaway Leaves 30 Dead

SEOUL (AP) — A band of South Korean military prisoners staged a bloody getaway from their prison on a Yellow Sea island today and made their way to a Seoul suburb in a hijacked bus before they were nearly wiped out in a gun battle with police.

Defence Minister Jung Nae-Huk said 30 persons were killed, including at least 12 prison guards and officials. The mutineers broke out of custody on Shikim Island 15 miles offshore from Incheon on the South Korean west coast and later battled mainland police from a commandeered bus.

The counter-espionage operations command had announced earlier that the bus was commandeered by 21 "North Korean infiltrators" who had landed at Incheon in uniforms of the South Korean special forces.

The defence minister said he had submitted his resignation, assuming responsibility for the incident.

The South Korean armed forces were put on alert and Seoul's international airport was closed to outgoing flights for three hours.

The U.S. military command in Seoul was also placed on alert because of the erroneous report, but all precautionary measures were lifted in the afternoon, U.S. military officials said.

HELD ON ISLAND

The defence minister gave this account of the prison break:

The 23 mutineers were "special prisoners with civilian status" in the custody of a South Korean special forces unit on Shikim Island, in the Yellow Sea 15 miles west of Incheon. The prisoners broke out because of grievances they had against their captors.

They launched their mutiny at 6 a.m. today, killing 12 prison officials and wounding 10. Seven other prison officials were missing and presumed to have drowned, and only three officials on the island escaped harm.

Armed with weapons they seized from prison officials, the mutineers hijacked a civilian boat and landed near a popular Incheon beach. There they took over a passenger bus and told the driver to take them to Seoul.

Security forces intercepted them near Incheon, and one of the escapees was killed and three others captured in an exchange of fire. But the rest broke through with the bus and reached Yongdungpo, an industrial area in the southern part of the capital, shortly after 2 p.m.

There, five miles south of the presidential palace, the bus ran up on a sidewalk and troops and police surrounded it. The prisoners inside began exploding grenades among themselves, and 15 of them died.

A lot of pretty nice girls drive Toyota Corollas. (One out of every three Corollas are bought by women.) We figure it's because women just naturally know a good bargain when they see it. They know how much a gallon of gas costs and how nice it is to go up to 35 miles on one. They know about the optional automatic and 4-speed all synchromesh transmissions. (Even if they don't know what all the synchromesh is about.)

They also know that along with every Corolla you get a lot of nice gadgets. Like fully reclining front bucket seats, an electric rear window defroster, Fresh-Flow ventilation, and front disc brakes.

But there's another reason why so many women buy the Corolla. They like the way it looks. And they naturally feel that one pretty face and nice figure deserves another.

And so it does.

The Power Play

THE RUNNING BATTLE which Premier Bennett is conducting with the British Columbia medical profession has taken on an even shoddier appearance with his latest tactic. The background of the recent moves enabling the government to control medical appointments to hospitals, and to influence use of hospital laboratories by the public, has been, of course, the medical profession's fee negotiations with Mr. Bennett and his administrators. The government's moves so far, in fact, may be viewed as merely establishing a negotiating position.

That position now means, as Mr. Bennett made clear last week, that the doctors should hold down their demands for fee increases or even — was it entirely tongue-in-cheek? — take a 10 per cent cut. If they do not, then the retaliation will be quick. The government will exercise the power of its new order-in-council and direct which doctors may use the hospitals and which may not. As part of this power will be the government's ability to "suggest" that doctors practise in distant areas of the province rather than in the urban centres if they want hospital privileges.

Mr. Bennett has gone so far as to indicate that if the doctors keep their fee demands down he will not use the hospital-control order against them. The Premier has asked, in connection with doctors' incomes: "How high is high?" In reference to his tactics in this negotiation the doctors might well ask: "How low is low?"

The public should not be blinded by consideration of doctors' incomes so far as to miss the fact that a salient principle is also at stake here. British Columbia has enjoyed an excellent standard of medical care. The system whereby the medical profession advises hospital boards regarding the granting of hospital privileges to doctors has worked as well as any human institution. The medical profession itself is jealous of its standards and good name and has standing committees that investigate any abuses by its members. The present system has worked.

The introduction of political pressure in hospital appointments would be very dangerous, not only to the integrity of the profession but to the public it serves. When cabinet ministers could "put in a word" for a friend, political or otherwise, that would get him a hospital appointment, regardless of ability, or on the other hand keep out a good man, the public's confidence in hospitals would be seriously eroded. Governmental records in too many other fields are not such as to inspire public complacency if the politicians get a foot into this one.

The "proper" level of doctors' incomes is a difficult one to establish. How much is your health worth, or your life, when you need the services of a physician or surgeon? By such a gauge the average income of medical men is hardly exorbitant, particularly in comparison with those of business executives, other professions, or even cabinet ministers.

It is true in the medical profession, as in any occupation, that a few individuals may try to push their charges beyond an acceptable point, and these are usually policed by their own colleagues in an official capacity. Another limit should be the ability of the patient to pay, for if services are beyond his grasp or if he is to be beggared for life to pay for them, little has been gained. Medical insurance, almost universal here, has largely looked after that aspect. But the problem still exists, of course, in regard to the total sum to be charged against the insurance fund.

The question that arises in the current dispute is just what Mr. Bennett's motive is. Is he cynically seeking public approval by pretending to fight the rich doctors? Is he trying to keep charges against the insurance fund down for its own sake, or merely to be able to divert more public money to projects he rates more highly than health? Is the whole manoeuvre merely a squeeze play to gain a little more power for a government that shows no signs of being satisfied?

There are sufficient cross-currents to raise a doubt among the public. But whatever the financial outcome, there should be no fooling around with medical integrity and independence as pawns in Mr. Bennett's game. They are something beyond money and not negotiable.

A Force in the Market

ALTHOUGH THE JAPANESE government is continuing to deny that it will revalue the yen and there is reported determination in some circles to resist the move, other signs suggest that this may soon happen.

Mr. Yusuke Kashiwagi, a special adviser to the Japanese finance minister, has embarked on a trip to Paris and Washington to see monetary authorities. It is expected that his report to Tokyo will form a basis for the government's decision to revalue the currency. Mr. Shigeru Nagano, the chairman of Nippon Steel, has indicated that he prefers revaluation to the ten per cent surcharge. The feeling is prevalent in Japanese political and financial circles that Japan is the primary object of Washington's attempts to strengthen the U.S. trade position and to stabilize the value of the dollar.

Premier Chou En-lai of China spoke to Mr. James Reston of the New York Times recently of the threat of Japan — a position which Mr. Reston found hard to credit. In the light of Mr. Nixon's drastic economic measures the growing influence of Japan in world affairs becomes much more evident.

Still on the Way

THE FINAL REPORT OF THE Le Dain Commission on the non-medical use of drugs is not expected to appear before October. It has not been difficult to obtain extra time from the government to complete the document which was initially scheduled to be released at the end of last May.

Although the final report should generate controversy there is an awareness that drug use or abuse is by no means the most significant barrier between the generations. This may account for the patience with which the public is treating the delay in the report.

Drug use by the younger generation highlights other causes of the inter-generation conflict: the revolt against the work ethic, despair arising from the impersonality of the modern city, and the freer attitude to sex. Drugs may simply be the most provocative way the young have to attract the attention of the rest of society to their problems. Drug use may thus eventually lose its special protest value and its appeal — except for those who find themselves unable to quit when they want to.

Letters to the Editor

Tired of Being Big Daddy

It looks as if the United States is tired of playing Big Daddy to the world and I don't blame it.

After World War Two, the United States acted like a generous father to all nations.

Friend and foe alike he treated nations like sons. He fed them; gave money, loaned money, (that will never be paid back) gave away complete factories, power plants, schools, roads, and rebuilt cities. He even furnished engineers, teachers, and technicians to run them until others could be taught. He protected the little from the big so even would have the same chance. He even purchased their products when he had the same things on the shelf.

After growing rich and fat they began to ridicule and stab him in the back. These same nations began to say "Get the hell out, we don't need you any more. We have all we want, besides you don't have anything to give any more anyway."

So it looks like Big Daddy has gone inside and shut the door, leaving all these rich, fat cats outside to fight among themselves.

Already most of them are knocking at the door to be let in again.

If it's daylight now, what are these fat cats going to do when it gets dark and the big bad bogeyman starts getting hungry and prowling around looking for these rich, "fat," juicy tidbits? They had better pray that Big Daddy doesn't turn off the porch light. — Burke Mullins, 64 San Jose.

Protecting Amateurs?

I would like to defend Mrs. Audrey Johnson against the recent protests made against her in these columns.

Mrs. Johnson's primary concern is, quite properly, amateur rather than professional theatre. She is herself an amateur director and advisor of considerable note, and amateur theatre has always been able to meet the cultural demands of our city. Perhaps because we feel that with the magnificent natural art works surrounding us we do not really need the man-made ones that help make life in big cities tolerable for those who live there. Perhaps we simply prefer to go abroad for our culture.

In any case, the value of amateur theatre lies in the pleasure and satisfaction of the participants and those in the community who know them personally, rather than in its entertainment appeal to an ordinary audience. Creeping professionalism and its attendant raising of audience entertainment expectation, may offer a threat to many of the pleasures of amateur theatre, and Mrs. Johnson is, I am sure, merely doing her best to combat that threat. — Mrs. Nancy Schropfer, 703 Esquimalt.

Bleaching Smoke

Daily I am offended by the smoke pollution belching out of the B.C. Forest Products on the Gorge Road. Some days the dirty smoke haze smog the Saanich Peninsula up as far as Sidney. The dirt and ash around the prime motel area on the Gorge are a major deterrent for visitors to stay long.

What a crime that this most obvious pollution is allowed to continue. Is there a phasing out plan for that part of the industry's removal from Greater Victoria? What is the plan? The offence is too gross to ignore. — A Concerned Citizen.

Dangerous Steps

As a recent resident, well over 90 years of age, I would like to comment on a dangerous situation in the middle of Victoria which could cause a serious accident to any pedestrian, especially elderly people.

I allude to a number of stone steps leading from Courtney Street up to the Land Registry parking area, west of the Anglican Cathedral. The steps are made of stone blocks, very uneven and widely spaced, with no hand-rails for protection. May I draw your attention to this danger before anything serious happens. Better spacing of the steps, or a hand-rail, would remedy the problem. — Harry Wyer, 941 McClure St.

'Order-in-council'

What is an "order-in-council"? How many cabinet ministers make a quorum for a meeting? It seems to have been forgotten that in July 1970 an "order-in-council" was passed to cut paramedical coverage to a ridiculously low level, for monetary reasons. But in the budget Mr. Bennett proudly boasted of a large surplus. Now, a year later, history is repeating itself concerning the whole medical profession, with again a need to economize in medicine just after a similar surplus has been boasted. In both cases the famous "second look" has been promised. How can this treatment possibly be applied by a democratic government?

Nothing adds up. — "Nonplussed."

Sandringham Admirer

I wish to express admiration and support for the management and staff of Sandringham Private Hospital, who are carrying out their duties so courageously and keeping the hospital running efficiently under conditions of which the general public has very limited knowledge.

The union concerned, C.U.P.E., is a very militant one with no holds barred. The school boards, hospital management, municipal authorities and others have to bargain with this union. It is to be hoped the members of these various boards will take note of the Sandringham situation and stiffen their spines in their bargaining sessions with this union. It also intends to send a picketer representative to Alberta to beg for sympathy and monetary support from the residents of that province. Why this should be, one might wonder as not too long ago C.U.P.E. boasted of a strike fund of a million dollars!

The women on strike at Sandringham have put themselves "outside the pale" by their behaviour, harassing and shouting insults in the public streets at those going about their lawful duties at the hospital, and friends and relatives visiting patients. Women who behave like this are not suited for working with sick people. — H.M.E.

ALBERTA ELECTION

Nothing Much Is Left But the Label

REGARDLESS of the verdict of the Alberta electors on August 30, Albertans will get a new government. Two of the Strom Government's strongest ministers, A. O. Aalborg, the provincial treasurer, and A. R. Patrick, the minister of resources, have retired. Over half the candidates of both the Social Credit and Conservatives are first-time contestants. Even if the Socials are returned, which seems likely a week before the August 30 election, it will be impossible to identify the members without a program.

But more important, the election of 1971 marks the end of Social Credit as an economic-political-religious force in Alberta. The party that swept into power on the wings of Bible Bill Aberhart's oratorical wizardry in the depths of the Great Depression is no more.

At the end of 36 years, all that is left of the "funny money" A-plus-B theorem of Major C. H. Douglas, and the fire-eating crusades against the banks, trust companies, 50 big shots, fountain pen bank loans and the international financial conspiracy, is the label that encompassed it all. It is the label under which the supporters of Premier Harry Strom are seeking another term in office.

It is not so much that Harry Strom, who picked up the Aberhart mantle when E. C. Manning dropped it two years ago, has been cleaning house. It is simply that the truly revolutionary administration led by Aberhart has quietly and finally withered away; a fate Lenin predicted for all revolutionary administrations.

Invisible Support

In the early days of Social Credit, visiting pundits were baffled, when they came to report elections, by the almost total absence of Social Credit voters. No body would admit to being a Social voter, but the party habitually swept everything before it. This is the year when Social Credit has become acceptable, even respectable.

Once the Alberta party was dominated by high school drop-outs, evangelical Protestant clergymen and lay missionaries and a sprinkling of school teachers it was the anti-intellectual party of the Canadian Bible belt. It was the party of the disinherited, the debt-ridden farmers, small businessmen, the working class. As such it was held in disdain by the financial upper crust and the professional types. It was hard put to elect a lawyer to fill the attorney-general's portfolio.

Today you can drive through the plushiest neighborhoods and count the lawnsmen emblazoned with Social Credit signs! Typical of the new wave Socialists is L. A. "Chick" Thorssen, who is an intellectual's intellectual, a professional engineer by trade. He has taken on David Russell, a Conservative wheel-horse in the Tories riding in Calgary. His campaign manager is Lou Faber, a prominent young Calgary businessman.

Patrick O'Byrne is Calgary's best known Irish Catholic priest and the first of his order to seek a seat in a Canadian legislature. His campaign manager is Rabbi L. N. Ginsburg, who is about as intellectual as you can get. Both are first-time members of the Social Credit slate.

Another newcomer to Social Credit is George Holem, a Calgary business tycoon who has taken leave of a multiplicity of interests to challenge Alderman John Kushner in a Calgary working class district.

Professional Men

Charles Gray, another professional engineer who is employed by a major oil company, is campaigning for the Socials against Peter Lougheed, the Conservative leader. Word from the riding is that he may unseat Lougheed, though this is hard to credit.

In the Edmonton area, the Social roster is riddled with college graduates, some of whom sport several degrees. Several outstanding figures from the sports world have also been recruited. Don Luzzi, the former Calgary Stampede's defensive guard is a probable winner. Ray Kingsmith, a business executive and big wheel in curling circles has taken on Bill Dickie, the Liberal turncoat now a Conservative. Dickie won easily last time but is running scared this time. It's a far cry from the old days. How far can be seen by the Social signs that now mark the lawns in the plushiest residential districts of Calgary.

Is It Blackmail?

By WILLIAM R. FRYE
From New York

The new Nixon economic policy, which in its international aspect amounts to devaluation of the dollar, may restore the American competitive position in foreign markets and ease or end pressure on the United States' balance of payments. But it will not be without cost. It is a form of economic nationalism. Together with the 10 per cent surtax on dutiable imports, it promises to boost American well-being by tapping the pocket-books of others.

Frye

This is not a course of action designed to endear the United States abroad. Washington sees what it is doing as an end to a 25-year American subsidy of foreign economies, notably in Japan and Europe — a subsidy which had continued long after it had ceased to be explicable as help in recovering from the Second World War.

But foreign governments do not see the Nixon policy in that light. They see it as an American effort to force them to subsidize the United States economy. Fabulously wealthy Uncle Sam, in their eyes, is easing his burdens by shifting a part of the load onto his neighbors' shoulders.

Reactions were sharp this past week in a number of friendly countries.

Canadians are anxious about a possible increase in unemployment there. Japan realizes its policies are a principal target, and is angry. The Common Market has been holding emergency sessions.

Unless brought under control, overseas antagonism could lead to a series of trade wars, retaliatory tariffs, and quotas which would halt and ultimately reverse the progress the world has made toward economic co-operation in the past quarter century.

International Disruption

It could also have injurious effects on the politics of international relations at a time when the future of East and West Europe is in flux, when the Soviet Union has sought to lure West Europe out of the American orbit, and when Japan's help will be needed to fill vacuums left in Asia by the gradual withdrawal of American power.

The explanation given, or implied, by President Nixon is that his moves are in the American national interest, and that this is the only — or at least the overriding — factor involved.

This philosophy has an unhappy resemblance to that of the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle in France. Like Gaulism, it may well be popular domestically, but it can stir serious trouble abroad.

Unlike de Gaulle, however, Nixon has offered to negotiate and compromise some of the issues he has raised.

"In full co-operation with the International Monetary Fund and those who trade with us," he said in announcing his policy, "we will press for the necessary reforms to set up an urgently needed new international monetary system. Stability and equal treatment is in everybody's best interest."

The implication of this is that once the world's currencies have reached a new equilibrium, with the dollar in a stronger competitive position than before, safety mechanisms can be negotiated which will protect foreign currencies from further arbitrary use of the United States' economic power.

In return for foreign acquiescence in the American fait accompli, the 10 per cent surtax on certain imports could be withdrawn, it is implied. The newspaper Le Monde in Paris has referred to this as "a type of blackmail," but if so, it is very likely that the principal financial capitals of the world will have to pay it.

No Longer Cornerstone

The cost to the United States will include loss of its unchallenged position as cornerstone and source of world monetary stability.

Washington cannot have it both ways; it cannot be at once an impartial arbiter and active contestant — though such was the world's confidence in America that for more than 25 years, that affinity did in fact exist.

It is one of the intangible consequences of Nixon's action that this confidence is never likely to be fully restored. From here on, the United States will be a competitor, to be dealt with as such, not a banker in whom to place one's trust.

No doubt this is a realistic change, one which the facts of international economic life will justify. America's competitors have rarely hesitated to take advantage of the constraints under which the banker, to be effective as such, had to operate.

But there is something sad about recognition and acknowledgement of the end of an era. What lies ahead will be far less orderly and predictable than what has gone before.

The workingmen of Victoria, while welcome attendants at all Liberal meetings, will have an especial opportunity tonight of hearing addresses on reciprocity as it affects the great toiling classes of the community.

The meeting which has been arranged for this evening in Institute hall is intended to give the workingman a chance to learn just how reciprocity is going to benefit him and fender his lot easier.

The Canadian Forum

NEW YORK — The Barbizon Plaza, on Fifty-Eighth Street, a block from Central Park. A smallish theatre, nowhere near full. An old crowd: long hair, some of it grey, freaky clothes, some very straight white shirts and ties, undergraduates.

A poetry reading, a benefit reading for Resist. Poets against the war: we will try whether the pen is mightier than napalm, the antipersonnel bomb, the herbicide 2,4,5-T.

The conception is almost ludicrous: poets hurling images against the most massive and inexorable war machine the world has ever seen.

Resist, 763 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Mass. 02139, itself seems almost pathetic, an organization largely of intellectuals and academics formed in 1967 to "raise funds to organize draft resistance unions to supply legal defence and bail, to support families and otherwise aid resistance to the war in whatever ways may seem appropriate." But its position is hard and forthright.

Resist believes "that every free man has a legal right and a moral duty to exert every effort to end this war, to avoid collusion with it, and to encourage others to do the same." The steering committee boasts, among others, Noam Chomsky and Susan Sontag.

So the reading is for Resist, the tickets are $5 each, the audience is small, and the atmosphere is like a family reunion. The Canadian visitor begins to feel some sense of the warmth of what his American brothers call, simply, "the Movement." The modern Languages Association is meeting at the New York Hilton: the MLA, the 30,000-member monster which serves as the professional association in English and modern foreign languages.

A Feisty, Gentle Radical

A gouty old organization which has for years indifferently digested papers on arcane philological topics and gives awards to works with titles like Our New Poet: Archetypal Criticism and The Faerie Queene, the MLA was invaded in 1968 by the New University Conference (NUC), the chief grouping of U.S. academic radicals and the incoming president is M.L.T.'s Louis Kampf, as feisty and gentle a radical scholar as one could hope for.

Consequently the MLA is now of interest to the academic left, and a benefit poetry reading during its annual deliberations is worth staging — though only just, if one judges solely from the size of the crowd. Later it will occur to me that the audience was almost all NUC, which ought to shame the MLA, for the reading was well-advertised, and there are 10,000 scholars in town who claim to be interested in literature.

The poets are gifted ones and within the United States, well-known — aside from Muriel Rukeyser and Denise Levertov, who are well-known everywhere. But the MLA meeting, one recognizes, has nothing to do with literature; it is a place to present papers, carve notches on one's bibliography, make useful contacts and get job offers.

In no serious way does it differ from a convention of automobile wifery manufacturers. The NUC is something else, the poets are something else, and it is good to be here with them and away from the production managers of Harvard and Berkeley.

The poets, in fact, are both sorrowful and angry. Robert Bly is in charge of the evening, a quiet-looking man in his early forties whose manner is somewhat reminiscent of Fred Cogswell. One difference is a handsome woven brown-and-white serape, which swirls about him as he reads. And how he reads!

Unlike the others, he has the poems by memory, both his own and other poets', and the lines crack and slash from his mouth; he strides about the stage, arms writhing, fingers splayed, clapping his hands, whirling on the audience with images of burning children, indifferent bombers, orgasms of death.

I suddenly realize that he projects a sense of shame in his nationality which is painful to observe; he probably does not know he does so; by now it is part of the cast of his mind. I find I am sensitive to that emotion, which I have felt since Oct. 16; a dozen weeks earlier I would not have gone to New York, assuming that the repressive atmosphere would be unbearable. Now the border simply separates one repression from another, and makes less difference than it ever has in my lifetime.

Galway Kinnell. Long brown hair like the early Beatles, a classically handsome face saved from Hollywood style by deeply graven lines: a more experienced face than Hollywood could find comfortable. His poem is as cool and lucid as his style of reading, beside and slightly behind the lectern, launching his graceful lines out to the audience with the perfect competence of a boy who knows exactly how to make a paper airplane soar.

The stocky woman in late middle age who walks onto the stage is discovered to be Muriel Rukeyser. She reads with great energy and feeling, throwing herself into the words, drumming out the rhythms. One poem begins "Yes, we were looking at each other," and as its rich description of a woman's encounter with a man drives forward, each line begins with the resounding "Yes." Her eyes, half-closed, seem to fill with tears; she shakes with emotion. As the poem surges to its resolution, the words punch out a resounding affirmation which subsides into the last line: "And Yes, we were looking at each other."

She Is Crying With Pleasure

Later I see her embracing a friend in the lobby: she is crying with pleasure. Her body, aging and plain, is lying about her. I have an impulse to go to her and take her hand, or embrace her myself, but I have inherited the stolidity of my culture, and I don't.

A break: Paul Lauter, from the University of Maryland, Resist's National Director, get up to talk about Resist and to pass a literal hat. Resist provides organizing kits, funds draft resistance unions, helps resisters' families, buys a mimeograph machine for this group and underwrites a conference for that one: more than 300 projects funded in three years.

Lauter has longish grey hair, bright eyes, a quick tight smile. In the MLA business meeting he spoke on several topics with an almost palpable intelligence. He is married to Florence Howe, who will be MLA president two years hence, having just been overwhelmingly voted second vice-president as a result of her work on the MLA's commission on the status of women in the profession.

More poets. Denise Levertov doesn't appear, so younger and newer poets take over: a black girl from Sarah Lawrence; a gentle pair of blue jeans surmounted by a lumberjack shirt topped chiefly by hair; a loping young fellow from Harvard. At the end Kinnell reads again, and Bly finishes the evening with a long chant he learned from the Dakota Indians: each time he comes to the end of a chorus, carefully dropping his voice, the audience begins to clap — whereupon Bly drives out another chorus, amid laughter and applause.

And we're outside in the canyon street, with a cutting wind rattling newspapers over the hard, dirty ice, and the MLA going on down the street, the subway clattering underneath, the irritated horns blaring, the cabbies who tell us they've been mugged five times this year. It's winter, and that's Rockefeller Centre with the Time-Life Building, the Esso Building, the McGraw-Hill Building, the Standard Oil Building aloft, towering, black as the ice and we are in the heart, the heart, of the whole monstrous empire, and it's cold cold cold.

Poetry? Resist?

We have been through a ceremony of fellowship: we have heard men and women crying out from their soft vulnerability, opposing with warm images these tall chilly buildings. Nous faisons, said the man in Hemingway, notre petite possible. It seems desperately important.

Some day it may even be enough.

Of Canada Belongs

By ALLEN DICKIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Unlike the War of 1812, this invasion is a friendly one.

The ammunition is money, not bullets.

But a Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press reveals that Canada's wilderness and recreational areas are being bought up by Americans in amounts that are alarming more and more Canadians.

As the United States becomes more crowded and its own wilderness dwindles, many Americans yearn for the lakes, the cottage lots and the islands to be found north of the border.

So they buy here.

And many Canadians, while not necessarily anti-American and who in fact welcome American visitors, wonder what's going to be left for them and their children.

'Too Dumb'

For example:

William J. Wineberg, a middle-aged 69-year-old from Portland, Ore., has made a hobby of collecting Canadian recreation land since 1938.

Mr. Wineberg created a future in British Columbia when he said he had 60,000 acres of prime recreation land, most of it bought for $10 an acre or less.

He says he has sold islands which cost him $400 for $40,000 and most of his sales are to Americans. Mr. Wineberg said Canadians have been "too dumb to invest in their own country."

And then there's the prime beach land in the Fort Erie area in Ontario where up to 90 per cent of the property is American-owned. That's in the riding of Energy and Resources Minister J. J. Greene, an outspoken critic of American ownership of Canadian businesses.

In Newfoundland, there's concern that Americans may be taking over the scenic Codrington Valley and beach land is being purchased by Americans in the Maritimes provinces.

The survey shows that the prime targets for American buyers so far have been the Maritimes, Ontario and B.C. — all readily accessible to large urban areas in the U.S.

Still, Canadians in the other provinces are concerned, too.

A member of the Northwest Territories Council said he was amazed when he bought 75 acres of wilderness and was approached shortly after by an American who wanted to buy it.

Profit Guaranteed

"Buy Canada!" says one pamphlet extensively distributed in the United States. "Claim your bonanza right away. Speculators guarantee profit or money refunded."

Officials in the provinces can only guess the number of Americans owning property in Canada. Some have trouble compiling even rough figures.

Federally, there is no record of land sales to Americans.

Americans can lease property in national parkland but an official in the northern development department says there is no record kept of the number of Americans who have leases.

The 1971 census, for example, did not even touch on American residents in Canada, or their property. It applied only to Canadian citizens.

Province-by-province results of the Canadian Press survey:

Newfoundland

Of the 153,000 square miles on Newfoundland and Labrador, 90 per cent is Crown land, most of it recreational area.

No Crown land has been granted to absentee owners — Americans or otherwise — for recreational purposes.

Prince Edward Island

"American ownership of island land is of very serious concern here," one government official said.

The amount of land owned by Americans amounts to 2.2 per cent of the Prince Edward Island total.

Nova Scotia

Robert Burgess, deputy minister of lands and forests, said there is no way of determining what percentage of the province's best recreation land is being bought by Americans.

"We do know that a considerable amount of shore property is being bought by non-residents — not only Americans but Canadians."

No Crown land is for sale in Nova Scotia to non-residents.

New Brunswick

An official in the provincial municipal affairs office said Americans own "about 3,500" of 198,000 pieces of real estate in the province.

He said Americans owned one per cent of the total land

Quebec

Lands and forests officials and real estate dealers indicate American ownership of Canadian land is not much of a problem in Quebec.

About 93 per cent of all Quebec land is owned by the government and one government spokesman said transactions with Americans amount to no more than one per cent of all land dealings.

Crown land in Quebec is mostly leased and not sold.

Ontario

Rene Brunelle, lands and forests minister in Ontario, estimates that some 40,000 of the present 315,000 cottage properties in Ontario are owned by Americans.

During the last 20 years, Ontario has sold more than 32,337 acres of Crown land and 17 per cent of that went to foreigners.

Manitoba

Although Americans have purchased recreational land in Manitoba, it is not a major issue. There is no percentage breakdown of just what Amer-

Saskatchewan

No figures are available on the percentage of the best recreation lands in Saskatchewan owned by Americans.

There is a general feeling that most of the land purchased by Americans is in southern Saskatchewan and is mainly farmland.

Alberta

Government and real estate spokesmen could give no estimate of the amount of land held by Americans. Foreign ownership is not a major issue in Alberta.

The provincial government, under the Public Lands Act, restricts the sale of all Crown lands to persons who have resided in the province for one year and they may not hold title to the land until they become Canadian citizens.

British Columbia

Sources say that not only is recreation land owned by Americans; but a good portion of the farm and ranch land in the interior is U.S.-owned.

By one estimate, Americans now own three-quarters of the cattle ranches in the province. "When you get right down to it, the Americans own the Cariboo," one ranch salesman said.

Until 1958 non-Canadians could buy up all the Crown waterfront land they could afford. After that, they could get around the ban on direct purchase by using an agent.

The 1970 legislative session put all Crown property out of the reach of all foreigners.

There is heavy American ownership in the sunny Gulf Islands in the Strait of Georgia between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Lands and forests officials in B.C. say it's impossible to estimate the worth of foreign-owned land because the province doesn't compile such statistics.

But there's no doubt that Americans on the West Coast of the United States find B.C.'s wilderness and recreational areas attractive.

One tiny island off the B.C. mainland was recently sold by its former owners, a Pasadena, Cal. couple, for $150,000. It went to a resident of the state of Washington.

BIG TELESCOPE TOUGH TARGET

Canadian astronomers have their sights set on one target—the largest telescope in Canada.

And, if nobody wants to give it to them, they are ready to work for it.

The astronomers, including some from the University of Victoria, intend to work on telescope projects for other countries to raise the money.

They want a 157-inch mirror with full equipment on B.C.'s Mount Kobau. It will cost $10 million, but that figure doesn't dishearten the scientists.

They think they can make a competitive bid to grind mirrors for Italian and French telescopes. Each job takes up to two years and costs about $300,000.

"If we got the two contracts, I think we would have enough to do our 157-inch mirror and show a profit as well," says Prof. V. A. Hughes of Queen's University, chairman of WESTAR—the astronomy group.

Hopes for a large telescope in Canada faded recently when the federal government cancelled the project for Mount Kobau. But the WESTAR group did get a guaranteed site atop the mountain as well as an underground blank for the 157-inch mirror with grinding machine.

With this machine they hope to work on the other telescopes. The profits from that venture, along with proceeds from public subscription, would start the Mount Kobau project again.

Canada's largest telescope is a 74-inch at the University of Toronto. The Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Sanich Mountain has a 72-inch telescope.

Astronomers include professors from Uvic, Queen's, University of Alberta, British Columbia, Calgary, Lethbridge and York.

DUNCAN JAYCEES PROMISE:

Swimming Pool

DUNCAN — Now that the Cowichan airport is nearing completion Duncan Jaycees said their next project will be a swimming pool in the area.

"With the help of other organizations and service clubs we intend to help build a long awaited swimming pool," president Wayne Buck told guests at the Junior Chamber of Commerce's annual installation Saturday.

"We intend at least to get started or raise enough money to get people motivated once again. There are thousands of dollars lying dormant for the swimming pool and everyone in Duncan can benefit by a swimming pool. It doesn't have to be an Olympic pool, it doesn't even have to be a covered pool—just a pool," he said.

Twice in the past year a swimming pool referendum for Duncan area has been defeated. From the last campaign about $75,000, which is earmarked for a pool, is currently earning more than $5,000 in interest annually.

In addition $10,000 has been pledged. Campaign officials anticipate the pledges will be honored when a pool is built.

A pool study committee, made up of members from the city, North Cowichan recreation committee and other interested parties, had recently been formed to study what kind of pool should be built, and where, when and how.

For the past five years Duncan Jaycees have played a big part in the forming of the Cowichan Airport Society, and in the planning of a 2,400-foot airstrip in the Glenora district. It is expected to be completed by fall, 1972.

Each year the president of the Jaycees automatically becomes president of the society.

Buck announced Saturday that, because the project is nearing completion and the job of president ties up too much of the Jaycees president's time when it could be used elsewhere, he intends to drop the project.

He said he spoke to several people involved in the project who asked the organization to stick with them until the project was completed. He said he will continue as president of the society.

Buck stressed that one of his main goals within the young men's group is to revitalize its membership. Where the club once had more than 20 members it now only has eight.

Helicopter Rescues Woman After Camping Accident

BAMFIELD — A woman who wants to remain unidentified was rescued by helicopter from a beach south of the Pachena light station Saturday morning after a camping accident Friday.

The woman, believed to be working in an experimental program under an Opportunities for Youth grant, was treated and released at Bamfield first aid post for a scalded leg and ankle. Her condition was not listed as serious.

Rescue officials decided to send for a transport department helicopter from Patricia Bay when other possible means of rescue were found unsuitable.

Personnel from the Bamfield lifeboat station and the Pachena light station decided the trail to Bamfield was too rough and overgrown for a stretcher.

A spokesman added the possibility of sending the Bamfield lifeboat in to pick up the woman was rejected because the sea was too rough for the boat to land.

There was little difficulty with the rescue, he added, in spite of high winds which hindered the helicopter landing.

Duncan Lawyer Appointed To Legal Aid

DUNCAN — Michael Coleman has been appointed legal aid director for the Duncan area.

The Duncan lawyer said his appointment by the legal aid society was effective Aug. 2.

Coleman said that applicants, who are people with not enough money to hire a lawyer, can apply for assistance by making an appointment from 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at No. 28-127 Ingram Street, telephone 748-8281. Emergency applications only may be taken by the legal aid director at 748-4452.

Second Housing Project Awarded to Victoria Firm

NANAIMO — Contract for work on a second housing project for senior citizens sponsored by Branch 256 Royal Canadian Legion has been awarded to the Victoria firm of E. J. Hunter and Sons.

The company won with a bid of $188,571, lower than offers from Quinney and Fuller Construction of Nanaimo ($191,500) and Sneddon Construction of Parksville ($194,000).

Tenants for the new building will be selected by a committee under chairman Ron Athenfold. Rent for the eight bachelor and 10 double apartments is expected to be $80 and $90 a month, with stoves, fridges, laundry equipment, heat, water, power, janitor service, cablevision and drapes included.

The Mount Benson Senior Citizens Housing Society will have a Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corporation loan of $126,329 at seven and three-quarter per cent interest to help finance the $215,921 project. Other funds will come from a provincial grant of $68,000 plus a $21,592 down payment provided by the Legion and other donations.

Dick Winkelman, vice-chairman of the society, said he hopes clubs, organizations and individuals will help by sponsoring apartments with $250 donations that would assist with appliance and drapery purchases.

He expects a contest will be held soon to name the second project. The first project is located across the road on Prideaux Street, near the intersection of Comox Road.

Man on Road Killed By Car

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — An inquest has been ordered into the death of a 48-year-old Ladysmith man who was killed early Sunday after he was struck by a car three miles south of Mill Bay.

Shawnigan Lake RCMP said the driver of the vehicle, Lawrence William Stearn, of Chemainus, said he was travelling north on the Trans-Canada Highway when he swerved to avoid an open truck door and hit James Brown, who was standing in the middle of the road.

Duncan Man Killed

DUNCAN — Roy Keith Deslauriers, 20, of Crofton, was killed Saturday after the car he was driving went out of control and hit a telephone pole immediately north of Duncan.

Passenger in the car, James Gordon Vye, 16, also of Crofton, is reported in satisfactory condition in Cowichan District hospital suffering from lacerations and a broken finger.

RCMP said an inquiry has been ordered into the fatal accident which occurred about 7:50 p.m. on Lakes Road. Deslauriers was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

Right-Wingers Depose Torres in Bloody Bolivian Revolt

LA PAZ (Reuter) — Rightwing army factions were in firm control of Bolivia today after ousting left-wing President Juan Jose Torres in a four-day revolt climaxed by 12 hours of fierce street fighting which left an estimated 100 persons dead.

But Col. Hugo Banzer, sworn in Sunday night as president, said his government would forswear the words left and right and "speak only of nationalism."

Banzer, who made an unsuccessful bid for the presidency when the regime of Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia was ousted in October and Gen. Torres emerged victorious, pledged his government would strive to improve the lot of Bolivians.

The 43-year-old cavalry officer was proclaimed Bolivia's 17th president in 25 turbulent years and the third in less than one year before a huge crowd of supporters outside the presidential palace.

Only a short while earlier the last leftist forces—the

1,500 member presidential Colorado guards—had surrendered to some 4,000 right-wing

Citizenship Act Changing

TORONTO (CP) — Communications Minister Robert Stanbury says a new citizenship act may be introduced during the next session of Parliament.

Mr. Stanbury, the cabinet minister formerly responsible for citizenship, said on the CTV program Question Period Sunday night that the act has been about three years in the making.

"We tried to remove any discrimination that has existed in this act previously and bring it up to date, since it is about 20 years old," said Mr. Stanbury.

He said the new legislation changes many of the laws of citizenship, the way people qualify and how to obtain it.

No specific date for its introduction to Parliament was given.

troops who surrounded their stronghold. Thousands of others, mainly ragged militia forces, laid down their arms earlier in the day.

FLEES TO EMBASSY

Torres himself sought refuge in the Peruvian embassy and Banzer said no action would be taken against him.

Banzer made it clear he was the strongman of the new government, denying reports that two other military leaders would share power with him in a military junta which would rule the country.

Within a few hours of his proclamation, Banzer filled 11 of the 14 portfolios of his cabinet, mostly with members of the left-wing Nationalist Revolutionary Movement (MNR) and the right-wing Bolivian Socialist Phalanx (FSB) which fully backed the uprising against Torres.

The MNR's leader, former president Victor Paz Estenssoro, left Lima, Peru, Sunday night to return to La Paz after seven years in exile.

The opposition to Torres which ended in his overthrow gathered force with the installation in La Paz in May of a people's assembly of left-wing workers, student and peasants delegates which called for general strikes and the prosecution of army officers accused of crushing revolts by tin miners.

Conservative sectors also were embittered at the takeover of private property by workers and the nationalization of private companies, some of them foreign-owned.

The turning point in the three days of fighting throughout Bolivia came late Saturday night when the air force went over the rebels and strafed loyalist troops and militiamen in La Paz.

Flooding Kills 100

PORT ELIZABETH (AP) — More than 100 persons were reported to have died in flooding following two days of monsoon rains that swept a 750-mile stretch of South Africa's eastern Cape province and Natal coastlines at the weekend.

Officials said every major dam within 100 miles of Port Elizabeth was overflowing and landline communications between the city and the rest of South Africa were cut off.

Eight of the dead were in a fishing boat that capsized off the Transkei coast.

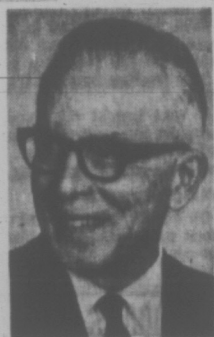

The worst-hit areas were the Gamtoos and Sunday River valleys west of Port Elizabeth. South African Air Force helicopters so far have rescued 250 stranded people there.

A magistrate at Hankey in the Gamtoos Valley said "at a conservative estimate" 100 people had drowned there.

Flu Breaks Out

RED DEER (CP) — A mystery illness affecting 100 air cadets at Canadian Forces Base, Penhold, near Red Deer, has been diagnosed as flu.

A base spokesman said the disease, which was first thought to have been food poisoning, is under control and not serious.

General Motors didn't open until Tuesday, when some 180,000 shares moved at $5, or 8% profits above Friday's close. Anybody in that crowd was out about a point at the end of the week.

Cincinnati Milacron was an

Friday at 44. But it was one of few exceptions. Steels were about unchanged on a Monday-Friday basis, as were tiles. The international oil shot up at Monday's opening but then some analysts started wondering about the effects of a dollar devaluation on their costs and the whole group slumped.

—Stock market rallies are nice to read about. Getting in on the gravy is another problem.

Bates Win Crown In Dramatic Style

EDMONTON — Bate Construction of Victoria Sunday won a berth in the national senior 'A' Men's softball final, but they'll probably remember that day, as long as any other in this year's history of the club.

Bates won the Western Canada championships here with a 10-0 victory over Edmonton Playboys in the final game of a best-of-five series, and therein lies the tale of drama and suspense.

For Bates had won the first two games of the series on Saturday, 7-0, and 9-3. Then on Sunday, Edmonton rebounded with 6-4 and 7-1 victories, forcing a final game.

And not only was it a crucial contest, but Edmonton had ace pitcher Stan Kern, who had beaten Victoria 6-1 in the third game, ready to go.

Bates won with iron man Pete Landers, who had been picked up from Campbell River for the series.

Actually, it turned out to be no contest.

Bates jumped off to a one-run lead in the first; Don Lancaster hit a home run in the second, and the flood really engulfed Edmonton in the third when two singles by Bates and two errors finally produced four runs and 6-0 lead. By this time Kern had been relieved to be followed by three other Edmonton pitchers.

Meanwhile, Landers went the route allowing the Playboys only three hits.

It was the fifth game in which Landers had played. He hurled a one-hit shutout and struck out 12 in the series opener, won by Bates, 7-0, and he relieved Lorne Auvaiche, a pickup from Vancouver Molsons, in the fourth inning of the second game, also won by Bates, 9-3.

On Sunday Landers started the first game, giving way to Barry Jackson in the sixth. Kern was the winner in that one with a two-hitter. Then in the second game Sunday Landers came on in the fourth to again relieve Auvaiche. He in turn was relieved by Bob Swanson.

Irv Bortko was the winner for Edmonton, allowing Victoria five hits.

In the final, he coasted home as Bates came through with a 12-hit attack against the Playboys.

HARVEY STEVENSON
... four homers

Sharing honors with Landers was bulky Harvey Stevenson.

The 225-pound Victoria outfielder smashed four home runs in the series.

He hit two on Saturday in the first game, driving in three runs. Then he hit a two-run homer in the second game. On Sunday he hit a solo home run in the sixth inning of the final game.

Over all, the big leftfielder was the hitting star with seven for 12 on the series.

Bates now will go to Halifax for the Canadian championship tournament which will be held over the Labor Day weekend.

This is an eight-team round robin playoff and will begin on Sept. 2 continuing through until Sept. 5.

Optimists Take Opener With Four-Run Surge

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Saanich Evening Optimists of Victoria utilized only two hits, to ram four runs across the plate in the third inning Sunday en route to a 4-3 victory over Sarasota, Fla., during a first-round game in the 15-year-old Babe Ruth World Series.

Barry McLaughlin led off the inning with a grounder to pitcher Joe Carson, who made a bad throw to first which enabled the Victorian to gain his base.

Lyle Scroggs then hit a single to bring McLaughlin to second and Kevin Alexander hit a sacrifice fly to bring the latter runner within striking distance.

Tom Jones lined a single to second to bring home McLaughlin but Scroggs was put out on an attempt to score on the same hit.

Jones gained third base on two successive bases on balls and then came in on an error following a grounder to third by Bob Cool. Cool and Bob Wilson, who walked, later scored on an error by the Sarasota shortstop.

Sarasota came back with two runs in the fourth when Victoria pitcher Bob Cool issued five walks and the Floridians' Gary Reger hit a sacrifice fly. But Cool settled down to blank Sarasota over the last three innings.

Victoria will meet the winner of the Puerto Rico-New Orleans game in the quarter-finals Tuesday while the loser of that game will play Sarasota in the losers' bracket of the double elimination tournament.

Dolphins Open Campaign With Win Over Spartans

SENIOR CLUBS DUEL TONIGHT

Farmer Construction and Greaves Movers will try again tonight at Royal Athletic Park to decide a winner in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League championship playoff after having Saturday's scheduled finale erased by rain.

Farmers hold a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five series and can wrap up the title with a win in a game that starts at 8:30. Should the Movers snatch the fourth-game victory, a deciding game will follow.

Birds Trim Runners In B.C. Boxla Opener

NORTH VANCOUVER — Vancouver Bluebirds bounced Victoria Roadrunners 21-7 Sunday in the opening game of the best-of-three B.C. midge lacrosse championship.

Amric Belletts paced Bluebirds with seven goals and four assists while Randy Delmonico added four goals. Other Vancouver scorers were Joe Marrello (2), Ted Seward (2), Jamie McDonald, Jamie Yelton, Ken King, Mike Iannaccone, Mario Govorchin and Gordie Quilty.

Victoria scorers were Dale Hoskins (3), Steve Croutcher, Ted Labh, Cameron Marshall and Mike Datzel.

Second game of the series is scheduled for 1 p.m. Saturday in Victoria's Memorial Arena with the third game, if needed, Sunday in North Vancouver.

VANCOUVER—To the surprise of just about everybody, including themselves, Victoria Dolphins whipped Burnaby Spartans, 13-2, here Sunday to win their first and opening game of the "Big Four" Junior Football season.

"Dolphins, the dark-horse club in their first season, held a wide edge over Spartans in nearly all departments. Chris Hall and Mike Blades scored the touchdowns, but the Victoria defensive unit also came up big in containing Burnaby, which finished second in the Big Four last year.

Quarterback Terry Karpiuk and Hall combined for a 54-yard pass-and-run touchdown midway through the second quarter. Hall converted and Dolphins led 7-0 at half time.

In the third quarter, Dolphins conceded a safety touch to Burnaby for the losers' only points.

Blades combined with Karpiuk for a 40-yard pass-and-run major in the fourth quarter and from then on it was the Victoria defence which led the way to victory.

Spartans marched several times deep in the Victoria zone, but Dolphin defenders, anchored by Matt Flynn, Rick Price and George Roberts, held off the threats. They were particularly effective in the third quarter when they held off two go-ahead drives.

SHARP PASSING — Victoria's most effective weapon was a sharp passing attack. The team gained 219 yards passing compared to five for Burnaby. Dolphins also led in rushing, 124-111, and first downs, 20-4. Total Victoria offence was 342 yards while Spartans were held to 116.

"We feel we belong in the league now," Victoria coach Frank Hindle said. "The rest of the season is going to be tough, but I'm glad we won the first game."

In another Sunday game in Vancouver, Meralomas defeated the Blue Bombers, 41-0, at Empire Stadium.

BLANK SPARTANS

Royals Finish Season

BURNABY—Rookie Joe Poulton scored his fourth and fifth goals of the season here Sunday to help the Victoria Royals blank Vancouver Spartans, 4-0, as the two teams closed their Western Canada Soccer League schedule at Swangard Stadium.

Dean Stokes, another rookie, and Hosie Anderson scored Victoria's other goals. Royals' netminder Barry Sadler chalked up his fifth shutout and the undefeated Royals' seventh of the year. Graham Lee was in the nets for the other two.

Victoria won six and tied two in eight games with Vancouver in WCSL coast division play, and finished the regular schedule with 22 points compared to the Spartans' six.

Brian Hughes, Royals' playing-captain, said Sunday there will be no playoffs for the WCSL championship. He said Spartans have refused to enter any post-season play.

Edmonton Eagles, leaders of the prairie division, folded last week.

Penny Wins Three Titles, Sets New Hurdles Record

WINNIPEG (CP) — A pair of West Coast girls topped two records and collected five first-place gold medals at the Canadian junior and senior track and field championships here on the weekend.

Victoria's Penny May, on her way to three first-place medals, bettered the 200-metre hurdles mark, and Vancouver's Stephanie Berto had two first-place finishes in the sprints and a record in the 200 metres.

The two girls were the class of the huge two-day meet that attracted 540 athletes in three age groups.

Miss May, 19, knocked nine-tenths of a second off the hurdles mark. Disdaining the starting blocks, she used a standing start and in a post-race interview said she only entered the hurdles because she knew she could set a record.

LAST YEAR FOR EVENT

This is the last year that 200-metre hurdles will be an official event and Miss May said she would like her name on the record books before the event finished. Her time was 26.9 seconds.

Miss May also took a first in the 100-metre hurdles with a time of 13.7 seconds Saturday, and following her 200-metre hurdles effort Sunday she jumped 19 feet, 10 and one-half inches to win the long jump hurdles.

Miss Berto blazed through the 200-metre run, shaving two-tenths of a second off the existing record with a 23.3 seconds record run.

ROGER RUTH THIRD

Another B.C. athlete, Debbie Brill of Haney, gave a repeat performance of her gold medal jump at the Pan American Games at Cali, Colombia, by taking top spot in the high jump final with a five-foot, 11-inch leap.

Bruce Simpson of Toronto pole vaulted 16 feet, 10 and three-quarter inches to take the gold in that event, but the crowd was just as attentive to third-place finisher, Roger Ruth of Victoria.

Ruth, 43, jumped all after noon with the best of the 19 and 21-year-olds.

Lorna McHattie of Victoria was third in the junior women's discus.

On Saturday, the near-90 degree heat played havoc with competitors. In the gruelling 10.00-metre run a number of runners dropped out before Toronto's Jerome Drayton.

Rocks Capture Thriller With Last-Second Goal

By STEWART LANG

Ranjit Dillon was the man of the hour — or rather half a second — Sunday night as Victoria Shamrocks nipped Coquitlam Adanacs 12-11 in Memorial Arena to square the best-of-five Western Lacrosse Association semi-final at one game each.

Playing a man short and with less than a second remaining in the game, Dillon collected a pass from brother Nirmal and blasted the ball past Coquitlam netminder Merv Schweitzer to cap off a fine night for the Irish.

The thrill-packed triumph helped make up for the 19-14 defeat handed out Saturday by Adanacs in Coquitlam during the opening game of the series.

Shamrocks entered the final 20 minutes Sunday with an 8-7 deficit which widened to 10-7 as Wayne Shuttleworth scored for the visitors at 0:54 and 4:16.

Action then became fast and furious.

Mike Beaulac and Dennis Sommer scored successive goals to bring the Irish within striking distance and Ken Alexander ran around the entire Coquitlam defence before ramming a goal home at 8:58 to tie the score, 10-10. Each of the last two goals were notched while the Shamrocks were short-handed.

Shuttleworth, the regular-season scoring champion, replied with a power-play goal at 10:52 to give Coquitlam a little breathing space.

Doug Thompson, who made several key saves during the same frame, proved helpful on the offence a little later.

Sommer gathered in a long pass from Thompson and raged down the floor to tuck away the 11-11 goal at 16:56 and set the stage for Ranjit Dillon's timely effort.

Alexander, who scored a goal in each period, and Sommer each fired three goals for the Rocks while singles were added by Beaulac, Al MacLean, Brent Atkins, Nirmal Dillon, Ranjit Dillon and Don McNeill.

Shuttleworth led Adanacs with three goals and three assists while double tallies were counted by Kerry Gallagher and John Allen. Other Coquitlam scorers were Dick Crompton, Doug Wallsmith, Wayne Bellwood and Jim Rickie.

MIDDLE PERIOD KEY

Schweitzer worked a little harder than Thompson, making 34 save to the Victorian's 30.

The middle period provided the key to Coquitlam's victory on Saturday as the home squad outscored Victoria 7-2. Both clubs scored six goals in each of the first and third periods.

Victoria coach Ed Kowalyk, who summed the game up as "a real good team effort" also noted that the Irish were beginning to "move the ball nice and cleanly."

Other factors in Sunday's victory might have been Victoria's tendency to move the ball more offensively and general tightening-up of the defence.

And so, with one victory under their belts, the Rocks visit Coquitlam for the third game on Wednesday before returning for the fourth encounter at 8 p.m. Thursday in Memorial Arena.

Comeau Stars in Nets As Burrards Battered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Joe Comeau put on a flawless goaltending display Sunday night as New Westminster Salmonbellies took a 2-0 stranglehold on their best-of-five Western lacrosse association semi-final, crushing Vancouver Burrards 15-3.

A crowd of 2,187 saw Comeau stop 40 shots. After Val Robertson's goal at 16:01 of the first period, he went 31 minutes and 16 seconds before allowing another 7:47 of the third, by Gord Fredericksen.

While Comeau dominated the first and third periods, the second belonged to Mao Tyler of New Westminster. He pumped in four straight goals to give the salmonbellies a 2-1 cushion.

Paul Farnell, Al Lewthwaite and Jim Giles each scored twice for New Westminster, which could wrap up the series Tuesday night in New Westminster.

Bell's, Century Tied in Series

Bell's Men's Wear and Century Inn split Sunday games to tie their best-of-seven Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League final series at 1-1.

Bell's took a 1-0 decision from Century in the afternoon opener, but the Inkeepers rallied in the evening game to whip the Clothiers, 4-0.

Don Frampton's two-run first-inning homer was all Bell's needed for their win.

Bob Cusance tagged a third-inning triple and scored on a sacrifice fly. Jim Wilson scored the winners' other run. Winning pitcher Ken Poirier held Bell's to three hits and chalked up nine strikeouts.

John Lauvaas ended a pitching duel between Eric Peterson and Ted Penston as he scored the lone run in the seventh inning for Bell's 1-0 decision in Sunday's opener.

Lauvaas singled, stole second, advanced to third on a fielder's choice and raced home when Peterson singled. Peterson and Penston each hurled three-hitters in the closely-fought contest.

This series resumes Tuesday.

Junior Softball Title Taken by North Van

Terry Lindsay struck out nine batters and issued no bases on balls Sunday while pitching North Vancouver to a 3-2 victory over Clearbrook in the sudden-death final of the B.C. junior men's softball tournament at Centra's Park.

Lindsay was selected as the most valuable player in the rain-shortened tourney.

All games Saturday were rained out and tourney officials had to change the format from a four-team, double-elimination affair to a straight knockout event.

In other Sunday games, Lindsay hurled a four-hitter as North Vancouver eliminated Port Alberni Arlington's 8-2 and Clearbrook's sidelined Brentwood Butler Brothers, 2-0.

HAJNAL FILLY ...

Montana Moon Keeps Shining

By BILL WALKER

There was a paradoxical note to Saturday's ending of the combined quarter horse and thoroughbred race meeting at Sandown Park.

For general manager Danny Hajnal of the Vancouver Island Quarter Horse Racing Association, operators of the 12-day meet, it had to be a success as well as a failure.

Hajnal ended up as the winningest owner in purse monies, but the meeting lost money — how much is not yet known.

It was Hajnal's two-year-old brown filly Miss Montana Moon which won the day's featured event — the Vancouver Island Futurity — by about a length over Shue Stretch.

Victory was worth $3,877.20 to Hajnal from the $8,616 purse, largest ever raced for on the island.

Miss Montana Moon previously had won the Canadian Futurity at the meeting, and had placed second in the Canadian Futurity Trials and third in the Island Futurity Trials.

Her earnings for all four races totalled $6,712, making Hajnal, not only the most successful owner at the meeting but "very proud indeed."

Miss Montana Moon has been out of the money only once in eight races this year.

The mutual handle, the lifeblood of the meeting, was a disappointing $486,490, for a daily average of $41,372. Officials had said earlier they needed a daily average of $65,000 to break even.

Winningest jockey was Howard Gray with 18, Jack Palmer, who rode Miss Montana Moon on Saturday, had 13.

A personal first was scored by girl jockey Karen Campbell. She had her first winner on a recognized track at Sandown, aboard Rim Ram. On Saturday she scored her second victory — a wire-to-wire performance on Danmar ($5.20) in the fourth.

Track officials has not further announcement concerning next year's plans, reiterating only what had been reported in the Times Saturday that:

"We will take a long look at the situation before making a decision." That decision must be made this week.

Vic Derman finished in front with a net 67, two strokes ahead of Jack Davies. Tied for third place at net 71 were John Carlow and Fred Ziegler.

It was a different story in the chase for low-gross awards. Larie Kerr of Royal Colwood set the pace with a three-over-par 76, one shot ahead of Cedar Hill's Greg Barnes. Two strokes off Kerr's pace were Brian Suggett of Glen Meadows and Gorge Vale's Al MacLeod.

New Westminster Salmonbellies here Sunday to lose the two-game, total-goal B.C. Intermediate lacrosse semi-final playoff, 26-25.

Victory sent New Westminster into the provincial final against Prince George.

Victoria, which won the first game of the series, 10-9 on Aug. 15, put up a great battle Sunday before a near-capacity crowd at Queen's Park Arena. Salmonbellies scored the series-winning goal with only eight seconds remaining in the game.

Al Benson was the big gun for New Westminster, scoring six goals. Brian Hazlewood added three more for the winners.

Top marksmen for Victoria were Jeevan Dillon and Al Francis with four goals each. Kim Bowles and Danny Green had three goals each for McDonalds.

Honors Earned Without a Win

Roy Passmore walked off with overall honors Sunday without winning a single race in the foreign stock section of a triple car-racing program before 1,480 fans at Western Speedway.

After finishing fourth in the trophy dash, Passmore placed third in the first heat and was runner-up in the second heat.

Neil Gustafson, who finished second overall, won the second heat while Dave Humphries, third overall, was the winner in the trophy dash. Ross McIntyre, winner of the first heat, finished fourth overall.

TONY BURROWS WINS

Tony Burrows had little difficulty capturing overall laurels in the figure-eight section of the program with victories in both heats.

Rick Barnswell was the only other winner, taking the checkered flag in the trophy dash.

Rick Carlson won the demolition derby in which one driver was injured shortly after the first start.

Lance Herriott, whose car was rammed on the driver's side, was released from St. Joseph's Hospital with abrasions later Sunday.

FATHER-SON DUEL

Saturday night action at Western featured a close race between Earl Pollard and his son, Larry, in the 50-lap stock car main event before only 1,280 rain-threatened fans.

Earl, who earlier won the trophy dash and fast heat, took the lead in the main event on the 11th lap when Dave Dalby blew a tire. The elder Pollard then survived one challenge by Chris Van de Water before the latter as forced to retire on the 18th lap.

The younger Pollard caught up to his father on the 25th lap and the two staged a thrilling battle until the 47th lap when Larry took a narrow lead and held on to win by half a car length. Larry finished second and third in the fast heat and trophy dash.

LOBBY MANIA

Those High Heels On a Marble Floor

Being the reflections of a man cooling his heels, for the usual reason, in a hotel lobby:

A century wed and still she keeps me waiting. Maybe timeliness is something women are simply incapable of learning. Could be. Some people never can learn to ride a bike. Winston Churchill never learned to whistle.

Still, if I have to wait, I can't imagine a better place for it. I like hotel lobbies, particularly this one. I like leather chairs. If she doesn't come in the next 15 minutes I'll get even by going out and buying a genuine leather chair.

Funny about lobbies. If you walk from here across to the phones over there at least 20 pairs of eyes will follow you, size you up, speculate on why you're here, where you're going. But once you've found a seat you become a part of the decor, an immobile fixture, something possibly planned for this very spot by the architects.

Who are all these square-shaped men? Ah yes, a herd of luncheon club members, a bunch of businessmen, emerging from their weekly gluttony. Their hearty voices break briefly across the plangent murmur of the lobby like the wash from a passing steamer. Not bad. I must remember that. Better still, forget it.

I wonder how they got that enormous crystal chandelier up there? How do they change the lights in it, I wonder, when they turn out? Why do you climb that chandelier, Leigh-Mallory? Because it is there.

Strange sound a lobby makes. I'll dissect it, analyze it. Yes! It's rather like the sound that dancers used to make circling the ballroom between dances. I wonder if they still do that? I wonder whatever happened to Terry's? Where are the Crystal Gardens of yesterday?

No, it's more complicated than that. Voices mingle, they meld, into an uneven drone, a kind of left-hand rhythm for the melody. There's the far-off soprano of a page carolling lightly down distant corridors, the stiff swish of the revolving doors, high heels on a strip of marble, between carpets, the gust of sound from the street let in briefly and then cut off again. I like the sound of high-heels on marble. It is perfect. I think it must give a woman confidence to hear herself clicking on her way.

Funny atmosphere in lobbies. As if everyone was listening for something. We're all so conscious of each other without even admitting it by a word or glance. What would happen in this lobby if a voice were suddenly to cry out, "Heil-Hil-Hil"? What would happen if I were to just quietly stand on my head in this fine leather chair?

What would that disagreeable man across the way do in that case? My, he's a sour one. The way he crosses and uncrosses and re-crosses his legs expresses some inner resentment. He glances every 40 seconds at the golden clock above the main entrance. He is accusing.

But now, incredibly, his face has softened, relaxed, become warm. Wouldn't you know it would be the most beautiful girl in the world? Is there any curse in the world that can't be cured by a beautiful girl? And this one is exquisite. Just to look at her is to receive a gift. She'd have made Churchill whistle. Why do you covet this girl, Leigh-Mallory? Because she is there, sir.

Always in hotel lobbies there are the lonely people. That man there. Middle-aged, handsome, a decent intelligent face. He's walked from the elevator to the newstand. He stands there looking at the bright wall of magazine covers without really seeing them. He is aimless. He glances — oh, so casually — about the lobby trying to see a familiar face, but knowing he won't.

He has picked up Time and Playboy. I figured he would. I figure he will put Time on top of Playboy when he hands them to the girl behind the counter. He does. Now he goes back to the elevators, the doors close and he has gone back to solitary.

And over there at the telephones each phone is being used. They look like figures at a wailing wall, each absorbed in his own small destiny. A covey of smartly-dressed matrons goes by in a bright cackle of small talk and the heads of all the men at the phones swing independently and in unison as they talk on.

What? Oh, you're here. High time, I'd say. No, I don't mind. I kind of enjoyed it, in fact. But you'll never know how close you came to owning a genuine leather chair.

Carol Kon, Susie Lau and Genevieve Lum. The four have completed a tour of the Far East and will visit San Francisco before returning to Hawaii.

STRETCHING THEIR LEGS on the lawn at Shoreline Junior Secondary School are Canada Geese who are regular visitors according to school secretary Freda Meeres. She said they like to feed on the seedlings of the newly planted grass field. Just after Times photographer Bill Halkett took this shot of school board employee John Cambrey and the birds, school district employees started cutting the lawn and temporarily evicted the birds, which numbered about 100.

Townhouse Project For Saanich

A 65-unit townhouse project has been proposed in the Glenford Gardens district of Saanich.

Yorkshire Development Corporation has applied for rezoning of 6½ acres at Agnes-Broadway-Douglas for row housing use. If approved by council, the development is expected to cost about $1.5 million.

The condominium units would be in groups of six and eight in 10 structures, plans show. Each unit would be just under 1,200 square feet, with two bedrooms and no basement, said a municipal official. They would be owner-occupied.

The site is situated in a recently sewered part of Saanich. Access would be from Broadway and Agnes. Plans call for an outdoor pool and recreation area.

Money Problems for Reid?

Public Displeasure May Affect Investors

Strong public opposition to Vancouver developer J. A. Reid's Wharf Street high-rise proposal will damage his chances of financing the scheme, say spokesmen of the Old Town Study Group.

Group members Jim Starck and Kon Lane said today it is likely mortgage companies will finance a development the public doesn't want.

Neither Starck nor Lane reacted favorably to Victoria council's recent compromise solution with Reid. The arrangement eliminated one of the three towers proposed in Reid's original project, but allowed for two higher and narrower towers.

Also agreed was that no construction would take place on the water in order to increase public access.

Starck said the compromise does not effectively increase public access.

"Psychologically, it's not public. The character of it is a massive private thing."

He said another important issue is that Reid's proposal should relate to other large-scale plans for downtown Victoria, which do not exist.

Land Values Up

If the Reid centre were built, he said, land values on nearby properties would increase, raising the desire to build more high-rises.

Lane said this would be accompanied by a decrease in the value of old, buildings nearby, because developers would feel they can erect high-rises and make more money that way than by redeveloping Old Town.

Old Town is a name describing the area between Government, Store and Wharf Streets from Bastion Square to Chinatown. With an $8,000 Opportunities for Youth grant from Ottawa Starck, Lane and about 10 other persons have been preparing a 60-page brief depicting the character and economic possibilities of the area.

Lane is an architectural student and Starck, a designer, is a former architecture instructor at the University of British Columbia.

The Old Town report will be released by Sept. 1, Starck said.

Lane said high-rises have their places in cities, but Victoria should not permit them to exceed 8 or 9 stories. They are cheap to build and offer fast, short-term economic gains to municipal coffers.

"But the worst thing is that no one really likes them," Lane said.

He said several factors make him believe the Reid project can be stopped:

Council has "no positive belief" that high-rises are good; municipal elections are not far off; and elected officials are likely to respond to public letter-writing campaigns.

"The situation here is not that bad. It's not as though there were an entrenched power group willing to put that thing through. It's just a vacuum of ideas."

The Old Town Study Group's brief will outline how to preserve the area to create a mixed residential and commercial district.

Starck said the group's approach favors slow growth over many years. He said it is a misconception to think that Old Town's buildings are "just a pile of crumbling brick."

An Old Town model prepared by the group, said Starck, shows how the buildings from Douglas to Wharf streets decrease in height roughly in proportion to the downward slope of the land toward Inner Harbor.

This natural graduation, he said, should be maintained. Reid's proposed high-rises will become an obstruction compared with the surrounding buildings.

Should Reid's project be constructed, said Lane, it still would be possible to prevent other high-rises from being built downtown.

"A single mistake is better than a series of mistakes," he said.

'VICTIM' HITS AND RUNS

Robber Misses $4,000 in Cash

An unarmed masked man fled from the Tally-Ho Travelodge today after an unsuccessful robbery attempt.

The would-be robber tried to steal about $4,000 from the lodge's general manager, Patrick Hungenberg, who was just preparing to leave to deposit the money at the bank.

The robbery attempt occurred at 10 a.m. Hungenberg said he was about to drive away from the parking lot when he noticed a four-door silver grey compact car drive to within 15 feet of him and park at an angle.

"The car drove up about 15 feet away and the guy jumped out. He didn't say anything, but I knew what he wanted. Fortunately, he wasn't armed."

"I could see his intentions after a split second. It sort of dumbfounded me. He came at me, so I hit him on the left side of his head to give me enough time to get the hell out of there."

Hungenberg said the money was in a deposit sack. He carried it with him under a barrier next to his car and ran back to the lodge.

Crossing under the barrier, Hungenberg wrenched his right ankle and tore his pantleg. He said the assailant wore a rainbow-colored touque and had a stocking over his face.

Was Hungenberg frightened?
"Not at the time, but I am now. It only took about a minute."

Sooke Salmon Fry Still in Danger Following Disappointing Rainfall

More than 100,000 salmon fry in Sooke's De Mamel Creek are still in danger because Saturday's rainfall was not nearly as heavy there as in Victoria.

The low water level has forced the fry to hole up in the creek's pools. The only fresh water circulating in the pools comes through the gravel beds below creek level.

A heavy rainfall, like the 5.3 inches which fell on Victoria Saturday would have largely alleviated the problem of water shortage, but only 10 inches fell in Sooke, according to the weather station.

As a result, draw-off water from the creek by area residents still constitutes a problem to the salmon fry.

Al Meadows of the Amalgamated Conservation Society claims that 20 of the 30 buildings drawing water do not have a permit to do so.

"Anything will help," Meadows said of Saturday's rainfall in Sooke. "It's a bit of let-down but it's something."

Meadows had thought the rainfall in Sooke would have been even heavier than in Victoria, since the area is hilly and generally wetter.

"The one thing that could help us the most in the next little while is cloudy weather. It cuts down on evaporation."

"We've only got about another two weeks to go before we start getting more rain," he said.

"The creek doesn't need vast amounts of water to make it safe for the fry. Just the rain falling into the creek may have been enough."

Meadows filed a complaint Friday with the provincial water rights branch about the draw-off situation and says B.C. water policy needs restructuring to ensure a minimum supply of water for fish.

Under present regulations, water not already granted to a licensee can be used domestically without a licence being required. In the case of application being made for use of the same water, a list of priorities is used to determine who has the right to the water.

In order of preference, they are: domestic, water works, mineral water, irrigation, mining, industrial, power, hydroelectric, storage, conservation, fluming, conveying, land improvement.

Before Saturday's rain no water could be seen in the creek, other than the pools where the fry are being kept.

Students hired under an Opportunities for Youth grant have been hand-feeding the fry in De Mamel.

Why Marry? Asks Rock Mother

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rock singer Grace Slick says she can think of no reason why she should marry Paul Kantner, father of her seven-month-old daughter China.

Mrs. Slick and Kantner are both members of the Jefferson Airplane rock group. She is in the process of divorcing her husband of 10 years, filmmaker Jerry Slick.

"Oh, there are two reasons for the marriage ceremony," she said. "One is religious ... but I don't have any church."

"The other is the party. You get married and have a big party for your friends and everyone. My work is a party, so I don't need a wedding for more party. I have it every day."

When the baby was born Jan. 25, the couple named her "god" — with a small g for humility, "but Kantner later decided to call her China."

CHINA'S PUPPETS BACK WITH A PUNCH

Apres Cultural Revolution, Culture

By NORMAN WEBSTER
The Globe and Mail

SIAM, Shensi Province — The term Cultural Revolution has become the convenient catch-phrase for the convulsion that gripped China in the late 1960s. Its effects were felt in almost every political, economic and social activity in the land.

One could be forgiven for forgetting that it really did all start with culture. And culture took it in the ear.

The list of approved entertainments was ruthlessly pruned to half a dozen operas and two ballets. Even the inspiring drama, A Bucket of Manure, in which a man and wife argue whether a pail of excrement should go to the collective, was purged, so to speak, from the official list.

Those remaining were rewritten to make the heroes whiter than white and leave the villains untouched even by Brand X. No new novels were published. Classics of Chinese literature went out of print.

imperialist. In excerpts from a Peking opera, other puppets outsmart and whip a group of Fiamintang baldies.

Similar themes prevail in much of the acrobats' work. Indeed, the show's climax is a full-scale acrobatic attack on a Second World Japanese military encampment. The action is terrific.

Other routines are more conventional. The performers twirl plates, juggle and do impossible balancing tricks. They tumble and twist and bound through gymnast feats. One even launches boomerangs out and back over the audience.

The Siam acrobats are only recently back in business full time. They have just returned from a year in the countryside living and working with the peasants.

Chou Tzu-Lin, 27, a pretty girl in heavy greasepaint, says the sojourn provided the troupe with insight into peasant feelings. They have reformed their act accordingly.

Now, says Miss Chou, they juggle with corn cobs in a scene showing the peasants' joy at a bumper harvest. And sure enough they do. Miss Chou handles her cobs flawlessly. (It's not surprising. She is from an acrobatic family and has been in the trade since she was six.)

The lengthy visit to the countryside for "re-education at the hands of the poor and lower middle peasants" is something many other artists have experienced. Siam's Red Guard literary and art ensemble moved out en masse for eight months in November 1969. Dancers, musicians, directors, costumes and props people — everyone went out to try to rid himself of the pernicious "Three Famoses" (yearning to become a famous actor, director or playwright) and "Three Highs" (desire for high wages, bonuses or royalties) pushed by the renegade Liu Shao-chi.

Back in Siam, they spend their time rehearsing and performing the ballets The White-Haired Girl and The Red Detachment of Women. They also do some folk dancing.

Basically there are two groups in the ensemble: One group, its members now in their early to mid-twenties, have been with the company more than a decade. A new group of talented sub-teen and early-teen boys and girls has been recruited in the past year.

They live with the company in its compound and receive some schooling as well as artistic training. There is plenty of the latter. In rehearsal halls the children work at basic dance movements under the eyes of veteran dancers now turned instructors.

The older ones, dressed in bright pink and blue rehearsal clothes, work on The White-Haired Girl. The father and his daughter share their poor but happy home. The wicked landlord casts his covetous eye upon the girl. The father is beaten to death and the daughter dragged off to slavery in the landlord's mansion.

The familiar scene unfolds as the instructor makes suggestions and Chairman Mao looks down from the wall.

Song and Dance Reviving with a Vengeance

Village Story Teller

Entertainment — and its approved message — are more and more being taken to the peasants these days. Theatre and ballet groups, films and amateur song and dance teams are springing up across the land.

For many, however, the chief entertainment is still listening to the village story teller, an institution in China. These days he or she has become a "revolutionary story teller," and tales combine a political message with the familiar ingredients of good and evil, horror and salvation.

Tsao Yu-Ping, 21, is one of 50,000 such story tellers in Shensi province. She works at the Liu Lin Production Brigade near Yanan. A junior middle school graduate from Peking, she has been living in a peasant cave in China's rugged northwest for 2½ years.

She says she collects material from real life by interviewing old peasants. Then she "reorganizes" it and produces her tale for the evening story hour.

They Talk, Fiddle

Even such traditional crowd pleasers as acrobatics and puppetry joined creative writing, musical composition and sports in limbo for a time. That time, it appears, is over. Slowly, true, but surely, they are all coming back.

Among the most delightful are the performances of China's puppets and acrobats. The puppets we saw here in Siam are manipulated from below, by rods and levers. They talk, fiddle frantically, move chairs, light up cigarettes and inhale, paddle boats, beat donkeys and fight with bayonets.

Like all entertainment these days, the show is heavily political. Puppet urchins do a sword and spear routine, then shout "sha!" (kill) as they bash a dummy wearing a helmet representing Japanese

He Lost 375 Pounds And It's Not Enough

VISALIA, Calif. (UPI) — After a 10-year battle against his bulging waistline, Thomas Qualls has shed 375 pounds. He hopes to reach his goal of 200 pounds by losing another 25 before January.

Qualls, 43, recalls that he would sit down a decade ago to a typical snack of three pounds of hot dogs, a loaf of French bread, a jar of mayonnaise, a large bag of potato chips and a quart of soda pop.

He spent most of his time either eating or watching television.

When his weight hit 600 pounds, he was hospitalized.

"I nearly died," said Qualls, who now weighs 225 pounds. "The doctors, when they released me, said I didn't have more than six months to live. But I decided I wanted to live, so I decided to really diet this time."

Qualls said his goal is 200 pounds by January, a physical exercise program to keep him in shape, and then finding and keeping a job — something he was never able to do because of his weight problem.

The Visalia man, who proudly displays a six-foot, five-inch belt that once girded his prodigious waist, had some advice for would-be dieters: "See a doctor. I went to a fine doctor who has helped me. He put all the responsibility on me and then encouraged me."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR
Forecast for Tuesday, Aug. 24, 1971

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Partnership, joint projects are subject to sudden change. Be ready for surprise actions by friends. Some due to express selves in bizarre manner. Sense of humor here is essential. Stay near home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Unusual assignment is on agenda. Relative sends signal. Be aware, alert and versatile. Associate co-worker may try to involve you in clandestine affair. Keep guard up — chin tucked in.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What glitters may be at distance. Protect assets. Romance and business do not now mix. "Know this; respond accordingly. Head voice of experience. Energies depleted if actions are rash. Maintain steady pace.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money in escrow is released. Keep sights on conservative course. Property, security is involved. One at home does have right to know. Put finishing touches on project. Expand horizons.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Check directions, even on short journeys. One who is ill could put in emergency call. Utilize intuitive intellect; means follow through on hunch. Don't procrastinate. Perform with verve, enthusiasm.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Financial gain a distinct possibility, but revised work procedure is necessary. Remember recent seasons. Apply them. Acquire individual figures prominently. Unorthodox approach is constructive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Surprises are featured; social activity increases. Forces tend to be scattered. Demands are made on your time. Be flexible, sociable without depleting energy. Strive for balance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Discussion with one who performs special services could bring unique results. Means put opinions, desires on line. Security tend now to daily category. Family member locates friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Study Scorpio message. Exchange ideas. Open lines of communication. Write and report, spread word. Gemini could be valuable ally. Throw off false pride; if you don't know — ask. Then you win.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Added prestige, money comes from professional endeavors. Decision could be made about your basic position in personal area. Home adjustment makes you happier. Maintain high standards. You gain.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Revise philosophical concept to keep up with current developments. Means do, not feel you are wedded to past. Plan ahead — including travel, vacation and special advertising program.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Behind-scenes events may directly affect your plans. One who is stable lacks enthusiasm. Team up with Capricorn. Strive to straighten out financial misunderstanding. Involves mate, partner.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have a unique kind of appeal. Opposite sex is drawn to you. Your voice is unusual; you appreciate music, the arts. You are a good listener and have ability to make each person feel special. Some restrictions due to be lifted; you will be traveling, enjoying change of scenery.

Meiklejohn: Gimmick-Hating Man of 'Calm'

Olde English Charm of Victoria: It's 'Silly'—Interior Designer

The old English decor of many establishments in Victoria may impress some visitors but to one of Canada's top interior designers it's repulsive.

"Isn't that silly?" said Robert Meiklejohn of Toronto in an interview in his Empress Hotel room where he and his wife were staying on a short visit. "What a point to go to with one of the most beautiful cities in Canada."

Just as bad, to Meiklejohn, is that plastic strip of grass laid recently by the B.C. department of highways on Douglas Street. "The next thing out will be plastic flowers."

All this is reflection, he said, of the seeming dishonesty of the generations that preceded today's youth.

"I have a good deal of faith in young people. A lot of the junk you read about them is a reflection of the people before them."

In business it comes out as something phoney or gimmicky to catch the public's eye and dollar.

But the work of Robert Meiklejohn Design Associates is far from plastic, he said.

It's natural and attempts to have something significantly to do with the history or environment of the area. That way tourists as well as residents can relate to design.

His company mainly does planning of commercial interiors, which he says should actually be done by architects.

"There shouldn't be such a thing as an interior designer," he said. "An architect should do the interior of the building, but he hasn't the time. It's a very involved thing and people are too specialized to do everything."

In designing an interior, Meiklejohn says his goal is to make the store or restaurant stand out, not the design itself. This has to be worked out with the client, and there just can't be a conflict.

That's why he prefers working for businesses rather than domestic clientele. Most Robert Meiklejohn Design Associates' business is done with chains.

The whole concept of the design has to be suitable, he said. It's practically impossible to come up with a concept of what the wife likes, what the husband likes and what we like, in domestic work. When you compromise, the whole thing is usually a complete mess."

A person's own environment should be an expression of his own taste, however bad it might be, he added.

The interior design of a business operation, on the other hand, is carried out for a reason. "Whereas in a home, just the fact that the client wants to have something is reason enough.

That's why our business works . . . because we understand what our client is trying to do," he said.

Restaurants are more enjoyable to design, Meiklejohn said. "Store space is engineered for selling. It's a machine — shoving people through to get as much out of them while they're in the store."

It differs in each city and in each location in the city, even though it may carry the same merchandise.

Restaurants are more of a challenge. Most are spaces designed so people will enjoy themselves."

Meiklejohn himself exudes an unhurried, natural calm, which must be rare for a person who works 12 hours a day in a fast-moving city like Toronto.

"My apparent calmness is a great asset as far as my business is concerned. The top businessmen I deal with are so used to running around helter-skelter, jamming as many things into one day as possible, that if you do talk to them calmly you get a lot more thinking out of them."

Life's hassles aren't worth worrying about, he said. "You learn to forget the unimportant things."

And that's something he likes about Victoria — its "casual pace."

"It's relaxing to be treated with such courtesy and not to be pushed and shoved."

Meiklejohn's dream of the future?

"Tiered, spacious living areas (not cell-like apartment blocks) with molded utility rooms to cut expense and unnecessary space."

"Widespread living space is just old-fashioned." Owning land will become less important; it will be the person himself that will matter, he said.

Black Sash Stands Out In S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The 30 lightly clad white women with black mourning sashes stand silently holding placards. It's yet another 24-hour protest on a main Johannesburg street.

Most are young mothers, some middle-aged and a few elderly. They stand without warmth or food, their protest symbolizing those who must spend the South African winter without warmth and food.

They belong to the Black Sash, a human and civil rights movement and one of the few organizations left in this country which protests government legislation and its treatment of the non-white masses.

The movement is restricted to white women, more than 2,000 of them.

They have been opposing the Nationalist party's laws and the effects of its policies for 17 years with scant success.

Black Sash protest in this country, where the voice of public protest has been effectively muted and where demonstrators are regarded as evil, is allowed to continue "only as a front to democracy," says Jean Sinclair, the movement's president.

It began in 1955 when she heard of a plan to load the Senate with a two-thirds majority to ram through legislation.

"That day changed my life," Mrs. Sinclair says. She was then a Johannesburg city councillor and a member of the opposition United party. "I was enraged by the move and from that day I committed myself to fight injustice no matter who it affected, no matter what."

How has the movement fared? It was strong in the late 1950s but membership dropped sharply after the Sharpsville shootings in 1960. Scores of Africans were killed in that small village and more than 100 injured when police opened fire on a reference book protest.

Following the shootings, the government clamped on stringent security measures. What was left of the Sash was a dedicated band of about 2,000.

The Hard Times Of Living With a Comedian

By HENRY ALLEN

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It's a classic line in family fights.

The wife, fed up with just one too many wisecracks or bouts of foolishness, stares at her husband with a spectacularly fatigued irony and says:

"You're a comedian, you know that? A real comedian."

One of those wives wasn't Carlotta Monti, though. Actually, she was W. C. Fields' mistress (and proud of it) for 14 years, a wife in all but law. But Fields was a real comedian.

If that fact made life with Fields difficult, it didn't make it any less charming, loving and sometimes poignant for Miss Monti.

She was in the area recently to autograph copies of W. C. Fields and Me which she wrote with collaborator Cy Rice.

Occasionally flavoring anecdotes with expert Fields imitations of her own, Miss Monti had nothing but good to say about a man who gave her little more than company and laughs.

She even betrayed one of the most sacred articles of the Fields canon when she insisted that the man who said "anyone who hates dogs and children can't be all bad" actually liked both.

"He left a large part of his estate to an orphanage," she said. "Any man who leaves money to children can't be all bad."

Fields left Miss Monti $50 a week, a favorite icebox, and his 16-cylinder 1938 Cadillac.

Even the $50 stopped when Fields' long-estranged wife and their son, Calude, broke the will in 1951.

Fields was stingier in life. Miss Monti's standard birthday present was $100. She earned spending money as a singer and dancer, simultaneously goading Fields into furies of professional jealousy. When she nursed him during a 13-month stay in a sanitarium, he paid her $50 a week. She saved $950 out of it and she bought him a phonograph. Despite the suspicions of Fields (and others), she was in it for love, not money.

So Miss Monti had nothing but good to say about the man who used to leave huge amounts of money lying around his various Hollywood mansions to test her honesty, who once sent her to the bank to withdraw $50,000 in cash and sent his agent to the airport to prevent her from escaping with it.

"Anything he did was a joke," she insisted.

Medicine, for Fields, was two quarts of martinis, a day, slipped slowly, starting with two before breakfast.

"He was never drunk," Miss Monti said.

But the alcohol killed him, as two doctors had told him it would, evoking the Fields response that he's finally found two doctors who could agree on something. Chrysois, dropsy and malfunctioning of the kidneys sent him to his last sanitarium, Las Encinas, where friends as always would smuggle booze into his room.

On Christmas day, 1946, Fields called her to his bedside and rasped "Goddamn, Goddamn the whole friggin' world and everyone in it but you, Carlotta."

Moments later, a stomach hemorrhage killed him.

Miss Monti found a job as a clerk with Technicolor, Inc. Today she lives in a two-bedroom flat in West Los Angeles, and paints and writes. Sometimes she drives the old Cadillac over roads she and "Woody" toured.

FRAU KARL
... chief detective

She Dislikes Jailing People

MUNICH (AP) — A kindly, graying woman of 55 has become the first woman in West Germany to head a detective division for a large metropolitan police department. Part of her philosophy is: "Dangerous is the policeman who feels happy when he puts someone behind bars."

The appointment was a turning point for emancipation in a country which for centuries has considered "Kinder, Kirche, Kueche" the realm of women. That means "children, church, kitchen."

For Mathilda Karl it was a personal triumph. She was chosen from among 20 top police officers to head the criminal investigation division of Munich-West, largest district in the Bavarian capital. This makes her responsible for the safety of 300,000 persons.

As "Kriminalamstratting," a rank equivalent to a chief inspector, she directs the work of 30 men and two women, including three inspectors. She also rates her subordinates for promotion.

Good Reaction

"The reaction of the men under Frau Karl has been very good," says Herman Haering, director of Munich's detectives, who pushed the appointment of a woman to a job heretofore reserved for men.

German police departments have long had women detectives in segregated divisions, with responsibilities limited to the investigation of sex crimes involving juveniles, general juvenile delinquency and crime prevention.

"I decided that we would break through the narrow character of the women's criminal police and use the women for general investigations and for leadership positions," Haering said.

Haering said Frau Karl is "performing brilliantly." He described her as "highly intelligent, energetic and one who never loses her feminine charm."

She looks more like a kindergarten teacher than a skilled detective trained in judo. She has had her share of perilous assignments.

Never Carries Gun

Trained in the use of firearms, she has never carried a gun, even though her work in crime prevention took her to the sleaziest of the Munich underworld bars.

In spite of having worked on hundreds of morals cases and other emotionally disturbing crimes, Frau Karl has remained extremely sensitive. She readily admits that it was not easy to adjust.

"For example, it was very difficult for me to put people behind bars and I had to find a solution to give me inner peace. I decided therefore that even as some people suffer from terrible illnesses such as cancer, others suffer from their own character defects. Some of the latter are so ill that they must be put away to protect society as a whole."

"I always feel sorry for the person that I have to put in jail."

Civil Group Hypocritical?

SEATTLE (AP) — A number of employees of the American Civil Liberties Union say the ACLU is discriminating against women.

A spokesman for the group, Melissa Garman, said she and other employees picketed the ACLU headquarters to protest the elimination of a position held by a woman, who was later refused another position for which the employees say she was qualified.

Miss Garman also said that there has been a history of problems over wages and other issues at the ACLU and that there have been other instances which point to a discriminatory policy toward women. ACLU executives have been ignoring the civil liberties of their own employees, she said.

To-Be Groom Blows Nest-Egg Scheme

CARAQUET, N.B. (CP) — Caraque resident Jean-Diogene Cormier, 23, says he has "something else in mind" to replace an unsuccessful attempt to build a marriage nest-egg by mailing pleas for cash.

Jean sent about 400 letters to New Brunswickers during May and June asking for contributions towards a nest egg for himself and fiancée Nicole Ginet.

He spent $250 on printing and postage but only received about $35 cash.

"I had about 10 answers with money and five or six without money. Most of those said if they gave me something, later on someone else will do the same thing and it will never end."

Still optimistic he'll succeed in raising cash, Jean refers to his "next project" but declines to specify what he has in mind.

Opened just about three months ago in the old customs building at the foot of Beacon Avenue, it already houses an interesting collection of artifacts.

Nucleus of the display came from Mrs. J. John, who had been gathering relics, large and small, that had to do with the history of North Saanich.

Early in February Mrs. John offered her collection to Sidney council with the proviso that a fireproof building be found for it.

As it happened council had just purchased the old brick elizabeth forbes

customs house with thought of preserving it as an historic building. So, it didn't take long to accept Mrs. John's offer and to house her collection there.

The town's centennial grant is being used for landscaping around the Beacon Avenue building and to provide extra parking. Members of the Sidney and North Saanich Historical Society (many of them descendants of early pioneers out there) have been busy cataloguing, researching and arranging the display.

They also man the museum on a rotating volunteer plan and keep the place tidy.

When I was there recently Miss Grace Moses was the hostess. Her grandfather came over the Oregon Trail and her grandmother travelled around The Horn to settle at Deep Cove, more than 107 years ago. She lives in a big, verandahed home, surrounded by fields and trees, on land her father and grandfather worked long ago.

'Lot to Do'

"We've still got a lot to do here," she told me as we moved from exhibit to exhibit, "but we're proud of what we have accomplished in this short time."

The main showroom centres around a carved mahogany wicket which served as the North Saanich post office in 1873. It was housed in the North Saanich store, across from the Brackman grist mill near Shoal Harbor and the postmaster was Henry Brackman himself.

Brackman's desk is another well preserved relic, also one of the first ledgers from the North Saanich store.

In those long ago days people bartered goods in return for staples and entries show seasonal harvests of duck, pheasants and venison were exchanged for flour, butter, buttons and ammunition.

It was common custom to hire orientals as laborers and the ledger shows quantities of rice sold to them.

In a "kitchen corner" you find iron kettles and pots as well as such things as vintage cherry pitters, lemon squeezers and apple corers. There's a sewing machine dated London, 1872, with "Instructions for use" on age-old, crackle-thin paper, safely enclosed in a small wooden box.

Wooden Yoke

Pioneer field tools have been donated, including a wooden yoke once used — by men and women — to carry water from well to house.

Leaving the main building we crossed a pleasant, high-walled courtyard (due for landscaping) to a smaller brick building where the front of an old cabin has been set up, log by log and cedar shake by cedar shake, just as Mrs. John discovered it "back in the bush." There are grinders, wedges, an axe and other crude implements at the doorstep. A bird sits on the roof.

In an adjacent room a parlor and bedroom recreates the Victorian atmosphere.

One of the museum showpieces is a huge wooden bowl once used by the Chinese for their bean sprouts. Another is extra long logs for curling ostrich feathers.

Indian Artifacts

There's a corner for Indian artifacts. "We hope to enlarge on this part of the display before long," Miss Moses told me.

There are hundreds of photographs too, of pioneer residents, children, log houses, weddings, early wharf scenes, picnic and church socials.

The historical society plans to eventually have a picture gallery in the basement of the main-museum building. Miss Moses explained, "It should prove of great interest once we get it organized."

HE-MAN HORMONES

KARACHI (UPI) — Pakistan's consumption of male sex hormones is more than double that of all of Europe, a medical gazette reported in Karachi newspapers.

Male sex hormones are used indiscriminately to increase sexual potency and as a "he-man status symbol," the report said.

Course on Women Started

MONTREAL (CP) — Women's Lib adherents and members of the other—second—sex will both be welcome at Loyola College's new course on women in modern society, says Prof. Margaret Andersen.

Both types probably could use the information that the course this fall will provide, she explained in an interview, "but it is not a course on the Women's Liberation Movement."

Prof. Andersen plans to explore women's economic, political, legal and social status in 24 classes with the aid of panels, small discussion groups and special lecturers.

There will be lots of opportunity for critical analysis of women and their relationships to the church, men, children and themselves — one reason why Prof. Andersen hopes to have at least 50 per cent men students.

For research material for her lectures, Prof. Andersen had to turn to the 100-odd U.S. universities which offer similar courses.

"There aren't many Canadian publications on this subject, although there are quite a few French ones."

"Probably my course will be different because of my own background which is literary and international."

Prof. Andersen, who is German-born and has taught in Tunisia, Ethiopia and the U.S., has been in Loyola's department of French studies for six years.

She is the only woman associate professor of 44 on staff — a situation which she describes as "pretty representative of women in university life."

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I would like to say, "right on" to Peg who resented the fact there were plenty of nude girls shows for men to enjoy, but no beautiful, nude men for women to look at.

I think it's time we women got a peek. — Another Peg
DEAR PEG: Down, girl. As Spiro Agnew said, "When you've seen one, you've seen 'em all."

DEAR ABBY: A 21-gun salute to the secretary who has been on the job for 20 years with no trouble. I wish there were more like her.

As a boss of an insurance company office I would like to say a few things to all secretaries who pull a sour face when the boss gets a phone call from his wife:

(1) I am a firm believer in "what's mine is hers, and what's hers is mine," so remember, it is also my wife's money paying you.

(2) If my wife calls and asks me what I want for dinner, or asks my advice concerning a problem with the children, I am not annoyed. She is trying to do her job, the same as you are trying to do yours.

(3) If my wife calls just to say she is thinking of me, that is all right, too. Her phone call is just as refreshing to me as your coffee break is to you. And finally, please get over the idea all bosses have wives who don't understand them. My wife understands me perfectly; I love her and our children, and there are millions of other bosses just like me.

— The Boss
DEAR BOSS: All right, but don't holler. You sound burned up. Are you?

DEAR ABBY: Our mother is engaged to a wonderful man who tells her he is deeply in love with her.

This man's wife died a few months ago under tragic circumstances, and evidently it must have left quite a wound because all he can talk about is his dead wife. Two minutes after our mother introduces him to people, he tells them about his dead wife and shows them her picture.

Do you think this man really loves his mother? Or could he just be very lonely? — We Care

DEAR WE: I suspect the man hasn't yet recovered from the shock of his wife's death. It's difficult to believe he could be "deeply in love" with your mother, and talk constantly about his dead wife. If I were your mother I wouldn't rush into anything.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HELEN: You can't teach a dead dog new tricks.

BACK TO SCHOOL

Probably the greatest single cause of indifferent school work is faulty vision. Now is the time to have your children's eyes examined and if glasses are required, bring the prescription to PRESCRIPTION OPTICAL, where children receive special attention. The opticians take the time and they have the patience and understanding to make certain your youngster's glasses will provide both good appearance and absolute comfort.

THE WEATHER

The unsettled weather will continue for the next few days as a series of weather disturbances from the Pacific moves towards the province. Increasing winds and rain precede each system and skies will clear briefly in their wake. These disturbances will weaken as they move inland and only a few showers will penetrate into the eastern portions of British Columbia. Maximum and minimum temperatures will be near the long time averages for late August.

Grits Pick Leader
REGINA (CP) — The executive council of the Saskatchewan Liberal Association has called for a leadership convention to be held in Saskatoon either in late November or early December.

The Liberal caucus appointed D. G. Stewart, member of the legislature for Prince Albert West, interim leader last month following the death of former Premier W. Ross Thatcher.

The council also appointed an audit committee to report on the party's finances.

Party Politics Urged
WINNIPEG (CP) — Mayor Allan O'Brien of Halifax said Saturday the absence of party politics from most municipal jurisdictions is a major cause of the estrangement of many citizens from their local governments.

Mayor O'Brien told the New Democratic Party's first Greater Winnipeg municipal policy convention the absence

Oil Slick Found

FORT ST. JAMES (CP) — Charges were being considered after an oil slick was discovered last week on the remote salmon-spawning Tachie River in central British Columbia.

R. A. Crouter, manager of the southern operations branch of the department of fisheries said Saturday the oil came from a tugboat which dumped bilge oil near the outlet of Trembleur Lake.

He said the amount involved as probably less than 100 gallons, and there was no damage to fish or spawning grounds.

Brawlers Fined

QUESNEL (CP) — Four adults were fined $50 each Saturday on charges resulting from a brawl July 19. Three persons were hospitalized as a result of the fracas which involved knives, an axe and baseball bats.

PNE Opens

VANCOUVER (CP) — Raindrops kept falling on their heads, but the drizzle didn't dampen the dazzle of the Pacific National Exhibition's opening-day parade Saturday.

Wrinkles

Exciting new 3-minute home method helps banish horrid age lines from forehead, around eyes and mouth. Helps firm up sagging skin under chin.

Now, say women can look years younger in days — thanks to CEF, the wonderful discovery of European scientists. CEF (Cellular Expansion Factor) exclusive in 2nd Debut penetrates deep — makes skin "drink in" moisture to "plump up" age lines and wrinkles causing them to dim and fade away. 2nd Debut (with CEF) is greenness. Use as a 2-minute application morning and night — then watch the amazing transformation in days. 2nd Debut (with CEF) is on sale at drug and department stores in two potencies... 2nd Debut with CEF-600 and double strength 2nd Debut with CEF-1200. Both are guaranteed or return for money back.

Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell and Attorney-General Les Peterson gave a political start to the 60th annual exhibition they rode in vintage cars near the head of the parade which marched through a mixture of sunshine and showers.

There were no serious injuries reported from the wreck. The nine-car train was west-bound from Jasper, Alta.

A CNR spokesman said reports from the scene indicated a large boulder weighing an estimated 100 tons punched a hole in the line as the train approached a siding known as Sockeye.

Rock Stops Train

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — A CNR passenger train left the tracks Saturday after hitting a hole left by a monster boulder on the railway's northern route 16 miles east of here.

A Choice?

A funeral is a highly personal event but families experiencing bereavement are today often confused about the choice of service that is available to them. People have been misled to believe that there are only two choices available to them — a high cost funeral of dignity, or a low cost service in which disposition is made in the quickest way.

Traditional funeral directors take into account the individuality of people and serve this individuality by making a variety of services available at a wide price range. We do not believe as do some of the new "societies" that everyone is alike. At Hayward's Funeral Chapel, we invite you to come in for a personalized consultation at no cost. There is no society membership fee required to obtain the type of service you wish.

Mistfortune Related to Life Changes

By TOM WILLIAMS
VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Thomas Holmes quit driving on the freeway because his score of life-change points was too high.

He gave up skiing too. Same reason.

Life-change points?

It's a method Dr. Holmes — a psychiatry professor at the University of Washington at Seattle — has worked out to measure how much we have to change to handle the events in our lives.

And he says 20 years of research shows that we'd all better start measuring if we know what's good for us.

Events Rated

"It's a statistical fact," he said in an interview here. "The more change you have in your life in a given period, the more likely you are to get sick or injured in the near future."

Dr. Holmes, 52, is a native of North Carolina where he took his medical degree, specializing in internal medicine. He moved to Seattle in 1949 and became qualified as a psychiatrist.

He's serious when he talks about his "social readjustment rating scale."

It's an index that lists 42 kinds of events covering virtually every kind of change that happens to people. It assigns each an impact value ranging from 100 points for the death of a spouse to 11 for minor scrapes with the law such as traffic tickets.

Snowball Effect

In between are ranked divorce (73 points), a jail sentence (63), marriage (50), being fired (47), a big mortgage loan (31), in-law trouble (29), an outstanding personal achievement (28), change in residence (20), and vacation (13).

Studies have applied the scale to thousands of people in several countries and in widely varied social, economic and cultural situations. They showed that eight of 10 who had enough change in their lives in a year to run up 300 points fell victim to illness or accident within the next two years.

And the effect snowballs as the change involved in coping with the new illness adds to the toll.

"So if you have more than 300 points and get sick, the probability is that you'll get a serious depression, a kidney stone or a heart attack, rather than something simple like laryngitis."

Risk Avoidable

That's why Dr. Holmes took steps a while ago when he saw his own points total creeping up around 300.

"Skiing and driving on the freeway were things I could easily avoid where the risk of injury was high."

This preventive aspect is his main concern.

As a scientist, he isn't ready yet to say that change causes illness. But the studies have shown a powerful relationship between the two.

And just knowing that change has a strong bearing on the state of your health can be a help in avoiding illness, he contends.

Sit Down and Think

He sees it working like this: "Say a person has accumulated 200 points and recognizes that he's getting into the high-risk area. I suggest he sit down and think about the events that added up to the 200 points."

"This tends to provoke insight. You tend to take an inventory of what the events were all about and why they were important to you."

"And once your brain goes through this kind of process, it gets reprogrammed and it makes your behavior change."

On the other hand, you can try to keep your points total down by avoiding changes you know will have a big impact on your life.

Statistical Index

He emphasizes it's the importance of the event — not the social desirability — that determines the impact it has on a person.

"It's the amount of change the event brings in your life." Which prompts him to offer a word of caution about applying his scale.

You have to remember, he says, that this is a statistically-derived index. It represents the mean or average of values given the different kinds of events by the thousands of people surveyed.

Although there was almost complete agreement on the

HOME GARDEN

Advance Planning Pays

By HILDA BEASTALL

The hardy bulbs which will bloom in some gardens by the end of this month do so because they have been planned for in advance. Fall flowering colchicums, sternbergias, perines, amaryllises, and crocuses are among the loveliest of plants in color, shape and habit, yet perhaps half of their charm is due to their unexpectedly appearing from late August and on through fall.

Unexpected that is, because once the bulbs are planted they need little care in later years, their leaves are mostly dying down in early summer and only re-appearing in late winter and early spring.

Thus the flower stems of these fall-blooming outdoor bulbs come up through the soil without benefit of leaves. (The exception is sternbergia, whose leaves begin at the same time). The flowers rise, Phoenix-like, from the dry fall soil.

Because of this habit, the bulbs need to be planted where a minimum of artificial watering reaches them during their dormant summer period.

For winter, the soil needs to be readily drained if heavy rains occur, yet sufficient humus must be present to hold moisture during the leafing time of food production.

prefer to have dark green foliage on background plants for these naked-stemmed fall beauties.

Taking all these points into consideration, a good place for them is in designated pockets of prepared soil at the front edges of shrub beds, where a fair amount of fall sunshine will be available.

The flowers of all these plants should be close enough to paths for full enjoyment of their beauty. They are not like a bed of petunias, or geraniums, to be grown in masses for impact of color at a distance.

Rather they seem an antidote to the excesses of the summer garden. Their beauty is quieter, more retiring, though no less perfect.

A gardener will rarely buy these bulbs by the hundred, yet in an initial purchase of a dozen or two will increase into delightful colonies in a few years.

First to appear are the fall crocus species in mauve and white, then rich pink amaryllis belladonna, followed by golden sternbergia lutea, then lastly the richly colored perine bowdeni.

The lavender pink colchicum autumnale and other colchicum species, cover practically this whole period from the last week of August throughout September into early October.

If you don't already have them planted, see what your local bulb grower can do for you, or leave an order for next year.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

A famous hunter was telling of his adventures in India. "I recall the time," he said, "When I was stalking a tiger. After a few hours, I found myself on a narrow mountain path. On each side of me there was nothing but a sheer ascent of rock. Suddenly, about 100 feet behind me, I espied a tiger eyeing me."

"I ran up the path. The tiger followed. I ran faster. So did the tiger. After ten minutes, I came to a dead end: a mountain in front of me, and a mountain on each side of me. I was cornered."

"What did you do?" one of his audience asked anxiously.

"What could I do?" The hunter replied. "Nothing, of course. The tiger ate me."

By analogy, at the bridge table, one's demise sometimes comes about from circumstances beyond his control. Today's deal is a case in point. North-South vulnerable. North deals.

Students Need Homes

University of Victoria Alma Mater Society is looking for two Canadian families willing to take in two exchange students from Japan in September.

The two girls, Hiromi Inoue and Migumi Kawai of Tezukayama-Gakuin University in Osaka will spend several months here to absorb Canadian social and cultural life.

Families interested in such an arrangement should contact Greg Fraser at 477-1834.

'TIME OUT' THE RULE

TORONTO (UPI) — The days of finding a parking meter with some time left on it may be over. Toronto's parking authority is experimenting with a plastic shield which, when installed on a metre, camouflages any indication of remaining time.

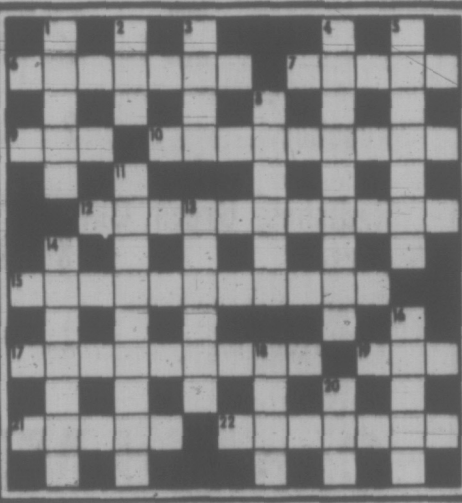

While the new system may frustrate motorists, it should bring increased revenues for the city.

In one parking lot where shields are being tested, the parking authority reports revenue has increased by 25 per cent.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

Jockeys Balk at Reduced Fees; Peterson Action Averts Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tonight's thoroughbred racing at Exhibition Park will go on as scheduled following last-minute intervention in a jockey strike by attorney-general Les Peterson Saturday.

The British Columbia Jockey Club had announced earlier in the day that Monday's card was cancelled because the jockeys said they would refuse to ride for the reduced purses resulting from a provincial finance department ruling.

A government directive from the consumer tax branch to the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association said the government bonus based on one per cent of the mutual play should go exclusively to horses bred within the province.

The bonus — approved by an order-in-council in 1949 — had previously been paid to all winning horses regardless of birthplace.

Peterson said Saturday no decision on the situation would be made until the end of the racing season.

After an announcement that the jockeys would refuse to ride, he talked to director of racing Merv Peters.

Peters said the attorney-general told him "no decisive interpretation of the order-in-council will be made until the conclusion of the meeting (season) and that we will continue under the old system until then."

The situation blew up Friday night when the Horsemen's Benevolent Association, the distributing agent for the bonus money, informed the jockey club that it wanted the bonus for B.C. bred only to go into effect Monday.

Peters called the association's move "the most regressive step racing could possibly take" and said it would cause all purses to be reduced by more than $300, reducing riding fees which are based on purse values.

He said an order-in-council June 16 by the attorney-general's department "supported the method of distribution as established over the past 22 years. The more recent directive issued by the provincial finance department is contrary to the interpretation of the attorney-general's department."

Reg Ellett, president of the

B.C. Breeders Association, said the move would "certainly benefit the breeders in the area. It will increase the value of B.C. bred by 20 per cent and I think you'll see it reflected in our yearling sale. It will encourage breeders to buy better stock."

But Peters said: "What it amounts to is that B.C. bred running in your lowest $1,500 claimer will have more earning power than your $5,000 horse bred outside the province."

"It will stop anyone from bringing in horses from outside the province and it certainly is no incentive to breeding."

Cowichan Junior Wins

CHEMAINUS — Laurie Peet of Cowichan Golf Club and Jill Smith of Uplands captured major honors here Saturday in the annual Mount Brenton junior golf tournament.

Peet, 15, defeated Wallace Grimmer of Campbell River by one stroke with a 27-hole score of 115. Peet was also eligible for the 15-and-under title, won by Dick Baker of Nanaimo. Baker downed Don Gowan of Qualicum on the second extra hole after both players finished with 18-hole scores of 79, two behind Peet.

The team prize went to Baker, Greg, Brebner and Russell Mitchell with a total of 240. Cowichan's entry was eight strokes behind.

Bowling Triumph

Flo Carpenter and Ron Andrews captured the Dogwood Trophy mixed doubles competition on their home Lake Hill Bowling Club greens Saturday by defeating Flora Martin and John McMillan of Burnside, 19-12.

Miss Smith, the Vancouver Island junior women's champion from the Uplands course, won the girls' title with a 90. Runner-up was Colleen Biggs of Gorge Vale with 105.

Laurie Vallean, a 36-hand-icapper from Mount Bre-

SAN QUENTIN'S 'BLOODIEST DAY'

Lawyer Sought for Questioning

NAKED PRISONERS are handcuffed and forced to lie on the lawn outside the adjustment centre as the search goes on for hidden weapons after an escape attempt Saturday at San Quentin prison. Guards stand watch over the prostrate criminals. Three guards and three prisoners were slain in the unsuccessful prison break. (AP Wirephoto)

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — The San Francisco Chronicle reported today that an Oakland lawyer is being sought for questioning after Saturday's bloody breakout at San Quentin prison in which Soledad Brother George Jackson and five others died.

The paper said prison authorities identified him as Stephen Mitchell Bingham, 29, and said he was the lawyer who visited Jackson Saturday afternoon.

The Chronicle said Bingham is a grandson of the late Hiram Bingham who served as Connecticut governor and U.S. senator before his death in 1956.

Bingham, a University of California at Berkeley law school graduate, joined an Oakland law firm in private practice last year, the paper said.

The Chronicle said prison authorities reported that Jackson, minutes after leaving Bingham in the visiting room, produced a nine-millimetre pistol and launched his abortive escape attempt.

WAS SEARCHED

The paper quoted prison sources as saying:

"We know he (Jackson) was clean when he entered the visiting room—he underwent a skin search—and that on leaving he was not out of the sight of his guards.

"And he was hot—he had a gun—when the guards were about to search him again."

Prison officials say they now believe a San Quentin guard's concerned curiosity may have triggered Jackson into starting the escape try earlier than he and fellow convicts had planned.

The guard and Jackson were among six men killed Saturday in what prison officers call San Quentin's "blackest, bloodiest day."

Sergeant Jere Graham was shot in the forehead when he went inside the maximum security adjustment centre, apparently to check on why other guards had failed to emerge. Associate Warden James Park said Sunday.

SHOT AS HE RAN

Jackson, 29, flashing a foreign-made pistol, was cut down by rifle fire from a guard tower as he and another black convict dashed toward a 20-foot wall.

Four other victims—two guards and two convicts—were found covered with blood in Jackson's cell, some with their throats cut. All the dead but Jackson were white.

Prison officials earlier reported that all five white victims, including Graham, had been slashed to death.

Park said investigators gave this account of what happened:

Shortly before 3 p.m. a male visitor left the prison after talking with Jackson.

Jackson was taken by a guard back to the three-storey adjustment centre housing the prison's most dangerous men—including the two other black Soledad Brothers, a trio given that name after they were charged with killing a guard in Soledad prison.

A guard, following routine on a prisoner's return from the visiting room, ordered Jackson to strip for a weapons search.

The convict then pulled a loaded pistol.

STILL A MYSTERY

Park said no one has pieced together what happened in the next few minutes, but he believes Graham entered at this point to see why other guards had not come out of the centre.

Graham then was shot, Park said.

Someone—possibly Jackson—threw an automatic switch which unlocked all the first-floor cells. This unlocked 27 prisoners, including the two other Soledad Brothers, and Russell Magee, a black accused of murder-conspiracy with black militant Angela Davis in a Marin County courthouse shooting last year that took the lives of four persons, including a judge.

An unknown number of convicts then slashed two white convicts and two white guards to death with knives, Park said. He said the body of Graham, already dead by gunshot, also was slashed.

Three other white guards suffered knife wounds.

The dead guards were identified as Graham, 39, Frank P. De Leon, 44, and Paul Krasties, 53.

The other dead convicts were John Lynn, 29, serving a second-degree murder sentence and Ronald Kane, 28, doing time for car theft and a prison escape attempt.

Prison officials blamed the killings on "dilettante revolutionaries—who aren't in here getting killed."

ORDER MORE SECURITY

Almost immediately, state officials ordered emergency security measures at every other state prison—and at the Marin County jail five miles away where Miss Davis is awaiting trial.

An advocate of freedom for the Soledad Brothers and a friend of Jackson's, Miss Davis was "very upset" when she heard he was dead, said her lawyer, Howard Moore.

Miss Davis and Magee are awaiting trial, on charges of murder, kidnap and conspiracy in the Aug. 7, 1970, courthouse shooting.

Soup Pulled Back: Canada Not Affected

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — The Campbell Soup Co. has recalled thousands of cans of chicken vegetable soup in the United States after the discovery of deadly botulism contamination in part of one day's output.

A spokesman for the firm in Toronto said chicken vegetable soup sold by the company in Canada is not affected.

The firm said Sunday it already has recovered about 56 per cent of the soup processed at Paris, Tex., and distributed in 16 western and southern states. It said more than 96,000 cans are still in circulation.

"To our knowledge, no illness has been reported as a result of eating the soup," a Campbell spokesman said. He added that the recall order applies only to chicken vegetable soup processed at Paris and distributed in Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Mississippi, Missouri, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas and Wyoming.

DESTROY CANS

The company urged consumers in those states and in adjoining states to destroy any cans of the chicken vegetable soup they have in their homes. Grocers have been instructed to withdraw the soup from their shelves.

The announcement followed the discovery of neurotoxin botulin in the soup coded 97p13,701x. The toxin causes botulism, a type of poisoning which kills its victim within 24 hours unless diagnosed early.

Company tests indicate contamination occurred only July 15, the spokesman said, but he added that all chicken vegetable soup packed in Paris before and after July 15 is being recalled.

The Texas plant manager, Joe Rex, said the plant stopped making the soup in late July when the contamination was first found.

He said a report from the National Canners Laboratory in California confirmed Sunday that the contamination was caused by soil-born bacteria that is destroyed by heat in normal processing. He said tests were still under way to determine why processing at Paris did not destroy the bacteria.

WAS ALERT LATE?

Asked if Campbell's knew about the contamination more than three weeks before alerting the public, a spokesman in Camden said:

"I'm not sure that we can answer that question at this time.

"If there was any sort of suspicion at the Paris plant in late July that the soup was contaminated, I am not aware of it."

Last month, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration ordered the recall of all soups, sauces and stews manufactured by Bon-Vivant, Inc., of Newark, N.J., after a can of the firm's vichyssoise was blamed for the death of a New York state man from botulism poisoning.

Campbell has urged consumers, after destroying the soup, to send the container labels to its plant in Paris. It said the purchase price will be refunded.

"Quality You Can Hear"

IMPORT REPORT

By CAM McCALLUM

If you have been watching the development of the internal combustion engine, perhaps you are aware that VOLVO has developed an electronic fuel injection engine that completely eliminates the need for a carburetor. Basically, the injectors in Volvo's fuel injection system are controlled by a miniature computer, which measures coolant temperature, induction air temperature, throttle position, engine speed and manifold pressure—all factors that determine how much gasoline the engine requires at any given time. The result is increased fuel economy, additional horsepower, improved warmup, and faster response.

I have personally just had the pleasure of driving a fuel injection VOLVO on a vacation motor trip covering a total of 3,665 miles. The trip included driving through the mountains and across the prairies and through a variety of conditions that included rain, 30-mile an hour headwinds, and temperatures up to 100 degrees above. It also included 600 miles of city driving.

I am happy to report that we averaged 31.5 miles per gallon on the entire trip—I think that's economy.

The vehicle I drove is now for sale at a very attractive price. Drop in and try out a fuel injection VOLVO for yourself—it's the car of the future!

Sweatering comes of age in the new Fall pant look from White Stag

At least torso length or longer. That in brief is the news in sweater-look tops you co-ordinate with pants. And White Stag comes through beautifully to keep you one step ahead in fashion. Rib knits combine with plains, sometimes turtled, many times vested, other times classically simple with "hard-ware" accents. It's sweatering styled specifically to merge with pants that hang straight or flip into a flange. On you they look great and keep on looking that way because White Stag co-ordinates them in machine washable doubleknit, neospun Acrylic from Courtreille.

Over it all ... calf-length pocketed vest

A. Sleeveless in geometric 3-tone with solid-tone bands at sleeves, neck and front. Navy, brown or cranberry. 10-18. 25.00

B. The Pants—flared pull-ons in matching geometrics of navy, brown or cranberry. 10-18. 18.00

C. Mated to long sleeved, ribknit, extra-long turtle with back zipper. Grey, cranberry, navy or brown. S.M.L. 13.00

Brass accents classic longer sweater

D. It's all wool and definitely has the hand-knit look (drycleaning of this item only is advised). Brass-look buttons and zippers (on 4 pockets). White, rust, purple, red, brown. 36-40. 18.00

E. Jean-type flare pant is in washable Courtreille fabric of other co-ordinates. Fly front, 2 pockets. Grey, navy, cranberry, brown. 10-18. 18.00

The layer on layer look with less bulk

F. Tunic top has vest-look, geometric torso with ribknit plain tones at turtle extending into long sleeves. Back zip. Grey, cranberry, navy, brown. S.M.L. 20.00

G. Straight-leg pull-on pant has elasticized waist. Plain doubleknit in solid shades of navy, brown, cranberry. 10-18. 16.00

HE'S WET AND VERY, VERY COLD after jumping from the CP ferry Princess Marguerite into the frigid waters off Clover Point Saturday. Lawrence Corman, 23, of San Francisco was making his second bid to enter the country illegally. He was treated in hospital for exposure and turned over to authorities. Corman was in water 15 minutes. (William Boucher Photo)

U.S. Man Leaps Overboard Seeking Asylum in Victoria

A determined San Francisco man seeking "political asylum" vaulted over the side of the CP ferry Princess Marguerite from Seattle Sunday afternoon in his second attempt to enter the country illegally.

Lawrence Corman, 23, was in the waters off Clover Point 15 minutes shortly after noon. While the ferry circled and a boat from the pilotage office coordinated rescue efforts, Corman was pulled aboard a passing U.S. pleasure cruiser and turned over to authorities.

The immigration department said after an inquiry today the man was ordered back to Seattle on tonight's ferry. He will return here for a Sept. 14 hearing with counsel.

Immigration's Douglas Cook said Corman told investigators he had jumped overboard "because people with cameras were taking pictures of me." The American said he had a 4-F draft exemption and was seeking asylum here as an opponent of the U.S. political system.

Corman was deported a month ago from Vancouver after he crossed illegally through the woods near Peace Arch Park on the border between Douglas, B.C., and Blaine, Wash.

He was charged with evading examination by immigration authorities and ordered deported. This made him ineligible to apply through normal channels for immigrant status, unless there is intervention on his behalf by the minister of manpower and immigration.

A spokesman for the immigration department in Vancouver said this was unlikely. The department has the option to refer the case to the justice department for more charges to be laid. This also is unlikely in this case, the spokesman said.

Corman told investigators today his parents reside in Boston, but he had no identification. He said he would appear for examination with his lawyer at the Sept. 4 hearing, and would appeal the deportation order expected to be issued at that time.

Corman jumped over the rail of the Princess Marguerite when the ship passed within several hundred feet of the tip of Clover Point at 12:15 p.m. Sunday.

The water was "freezing cold, as usual," a pilotage office spokesman said, and beginning to be made rough by a fresh wind.

A marine radio call was issued to all craft in the area, and the pilotage boat sped from her float inside the breakwater while the ferry began a wide circle.

At 12:30 p.m., Corman was pulled aboard the ferry, a cruiser from Seattle carrying visitors Joe Muleahy, his daughter Lisa and son Mark, both 13, and Lisa's friend Vickie Brodine, back to Seattle.

He was met by ambulance at the pilotage office at Ogden Point, carried by stretcher to St. Joseph's Hospital and treated for exposure. Police took him into custody at the hospital and lodged him overnight in city cells.

Corman was turned over to the immigration department this morning. Hospital officials said there was "nothing physically or mentally wrong" with him, but an immigration spokesman said he appeared to be "greatly disturbed."

NEWS BRIEFS

Sabry Charged

CAIRO (WP) — Former Egyptian vice-president Aly Sabry Sunday was formally charged with high treason, a charge punishable by a death sentence or hard labor for life, but it is not thought that the prosecutor will ask for death.

38.5% Pay Hike

Sydney, N.S. (CP) — City policemen are on the beat today assured of a fat 38.5 per cent wage increase over three years to be paid in part by the provincial government.

Students Bombed

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Bolivian air force planes bombed and strafed student holdouts in La Paz's San Marcos University today after they refused a government ultimatum to lay down their arms and surrender.

KY'S ANSWER: NO!

SAIGON (AP) — Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky's refusal to participate in the Oct. 3 presidential election plunged South Vietnam today into its gravest political crisis since the Buddhist uprisings of 1966.

Ky proposed that he and President Nguyen Van Thieu both resign from office to pave the way for a new election. He said this was the only way "to avoid the prospects of dark days in the history of the nation."

There was no immediate comment from the presidential palace, but political observers doubted that Thieu would agree to Ky's proposal.

The U.S. embassy, which successfully manoeuvred Ky back on the ballot after Gen.

Duong Van Minh's withdrawal from the race left Thieu unopposed, issued a brief statement saying it regretted the vice-president's decision.

Officials at the western White House in San Clemente, Calif., also expressed regret but indicated the U.S. government still hopes Thieu will face more than token opposition.

Berlin Wall Rules Relaxed by Russia

Dollar Trade Cautious

LONDON (AP) — Foreign exchanges reopened today after a week's shutdown but trading was slow and cautious at the outset as dealers operated without a set of internationally agreed rules for the first time in 27 years.

In London, the first European market to open, the U.S. dollar was exchanged between $2.45 and $2.46, which amounted to a cut in the value of the American currency of about three per cent.

The last quotation before President Nixon's momentous action cutting the ties between the dollar and gold was $2.4194. That was at the close of business Aug. 13.

Dealers in London said trading was quiet and hesitant.

One London dealer said: "No one is at all certain just where things will go."

UP, THEN DOWN

A few minutes after the opening, the dollar strengthened slightly to $2.44 for one pound only to drop back again to $2.45.

In Tokyo, where the opening preceded London because of the time difference, dealers reported trading was calm with the Bank of Japan taking in about $10 million compared with the hundreds of millions absorbed on most days last week.

Prices on the Tokyo stock market moved down again because of the uncertainty over the yen.

In Frankfurt, the dollar fell back to about the level it held Aug. 13—3.4250 marks against 3.4225 previously. Today's quotation indicated a sharp strengthening of the dollar in West Germany compared with the rate of 3.3875 marks that banks and travel agencies were giving tourists at the close of business last Friday.

Frankfurt dealers said trading was slow.

POSTPONED DEALING

Some countries decided to postpone dealings until trends became clearer in major monetary centres elsewhere.

In Italy, banks refused to handle commercial exchange transactions until an official rate for the dollar is set later in the day. Italian banks were handling tourist transactions, though, at the rate of 600 lire. This amounted to a dollar devaluation of four per cent.

France opened a split foreign exchange with two rates—one tightly controlled for government and legitimate commercial transactions and the other, free, rate for tourists and speculators.

STORYBOOK FINISH GIVES ROCKS VICTORY

Ranjit Dillon scored with one second remaining Sunday to give Victoria Shamrocks a 12-11 Western Lacrosse Association victory over Coquitlam Adanacs at Memorial Arena.

Victory ended the best-of-five semi-final playoff series 3-1 for the Irish after dropping a 13-14 decision in the Coquitlam opener Saturday. Story on Page 10.

Other sports news inside:

● Penny May of Victoria captured three gold medals and set a new 200-metre hurdles record at the Canadian junior and senior track and field championships in Winnipeg.

● Victoria's Bate Construction downed the home-town Playboys 10-0 to win the Western Canada men's softball championship at Edmonton and again a berth in the national championship in Halifax.

● Saanich Evening Optimists nip Sarasota, Fla., 4-3 in their opening game of the 15-year-old Babe Ruth World Series in Albuquerque, N.M.

Fee Freedom Offered If Costs Checked

Premier Bennett said Sunday that B.C. doctors can have freedom of action in setting their own fee schedules providing they agree to limit the annual medicare cost increase.

Bennett said he was referring to fee schedules when he said last week in Dawson Creek that doctors can have full freedom of action if they agree to control costs.

"Most people have construed that this freedom of action dealt with the doctors' right to look after their patients and practice throughout B.C.," Bennett said.

"At no time has the government considered these matters. What I actually said is that the doctors would have the freedom of action to get their own schedule of fees, if they agree to limit the annual increase in the cost of medicare."

He said there was no misunderstanding of the speech by those who heard it, but most people in B.C. had the "wrong impression" of the Dawson Creek talk.

Ottawa May Scrap Bomarc Missile Base

OTTAWA (CP) — Scrapping of Canada's anti-bomber Bomarc missile squadrons is expected to be provided for in the defence white paper to be released Tuesday.

As well, informants said

today, the policy document likely will provide for assigning a squadron of CF-5 ground support jets to NATO's northern flank in Norway.

It may further signal the end of the heavy tank role of the Canadian troops in Germany. Indications are that the present, aging Centurion will not be replaced by another heavy tank when its life expires.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald has said the white paper will address itself specifically to Canada's partnership with the U.S. in the North American air defence command, and the question of bomber defence.

There is a question of whether Canada is arming itself "against an attack which is a decreasing probability," he has stated in reference to what some believe is a declining threat from Soviet manned bombers.

NO NEED FOR BOMARCS?

Speculation is that the white paper will outline a plan for scrapping the nuclear-armed Bomarc, squadrons of which were installed at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que., in 1963 as part of NORAD's defence against Soviet bombers.

Since then, Soviet strength in conventional bombers has declined in proportion to its growing strength in intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The white paper will elaborate major priorities in Canadian defence policy laid down by Prime Minister Trudeau two years ago.

Big-Four Pact Terms

Times News Services

BERLIN—Major Russian concessions are believed included in the draft of a Berlin settlement reached today by Big Four powers.

Ambassadors of the United States, Soviet Union, Britain and France emerged from a five-hour meeting and announced the agreement ending 18 months of negotiations.

Some details remain to be worked out by the East and West Germans but the Soviet concessions are believed to include opening the Berlin Wall for West Berliners and recognition of the ties that bind West Berlin to West Germany.

In return the Russians would be permitted to open a consulate in West Berlin and there would be a limitation on West German political activity in West Berlin.

The ambassadors met for their 33rd session in the protracted Berlin talks, this time in the Berlin residence of U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Rush rather than in the former Allied Control Council building as previously.

CHANGE OF VENUE

This change of venue, coupled with optimistic reports from various informed sources, reinforced expectations that today's session would be the last.

Outcome of the talks is expected to have a bearing on such important issues as the ratification of West Germany's year-old non-aggression treaties with Moscow and Warsaw, the convening of a European security conference long promoted by the Soviet Union and its allies, and the start of talks between NATO and its Communist equivalent, the Warsaw Pact, on mutual troop reductions in Europe.

For West Berlin it should mean an end to 23 years of harassment and tension, clarification of its disputed status and the chance for its citizens to travel freely to and from the city, and once more into East Berlin and East Germany.

Agreement on a draft four-power accord, assuming that it is accepted by the respective governments, would mark only the first stage of an eventual Berlin agreement.

Sniper Kills U.K. Soldier

BELFAST (Reuters) — A British soldier was shot and killed by a sniper here today, the army announced.

The soldier was on sentry duty outside a mill in the Northern Irish capital's Ardoyne area when he was shot by a hidden gunman.

Earlier today, police announced that a civilian wounded during a gun battle with British troops two weeks ago had died in hospital.

The two deaths brought to 31 the total killed since the current troubles in Northern Ireland began Aug. 9.

IT'S A GIRL FOR BERNADETTE

BELFAST (AP) — Bernadette Devlin, 24-year-old member of Parliament from Northern Ireland and firebrand civil rights campaigner, gave birth to a daughter in Nagharelt Hospital today.

The unwed mother and the child were reported well, although the birth had not been expected for another month.

Miss Devlin's past week of day-and-night political meetings, whipping up civil disobedience to the central government in the current wave of violence, may have affected the timetable.

crown, stands in the rain along with 150,000 others Saturday during PNE parade. Queen is chosen Tuesday.

LOBBY MANIA

Those High Heels On a Marble Floor

Being the reflections of a man cooling his heels, for the usual reason, in a hotel lobby:

A century wed and still she keeps me waiting. Maybe timeliness is something women are simply incapable of learning. Could be. Some people never can learn to ride a bike. Winston Churchill never learned to whistle.

Still, if I have to wait, I can't imagine a better place for it. I like hotel lobbies, particularly this one. I like leather chairs. If she doesn't come in the next 15 minutes I'll get even by going out and buying a genuine leather chair.

Funny about lobbies. If you walk from here across to the phones over there at least 20 pairs of eyes will follow you, size you up, speculate on why you're here, where you're going. But once you've found a seat you become a part of the decor, an immobile fixture, something possibly planned for this very spot by the architects.

Who are all these square-shaped men? Ah yes, a herd of luncheon club members, a bunch of businessmen, emerging from their weekly gluttony. Their hearty voices break briefly across the plangent murmur of the lobby like the wash from a passing steamer. Not bad. I must remember that. Better still, forget it.

I wonder how they got that enormous crystal chandelier up there? How do they change the lights in it, I wonder, when they burn out? Why do you climb that chandelier, Leigh-Mallory? Because it is there.

Strange sound a lobby makes. I'll dissect it, analyze it. Yes! It's rather like the sound that dancers used to make circling the ballroom between dances. I wonder if they still do that? I wonder whatever happened to Terry's? Where are the Crystal Gardens of yesterday?

No, it's more complicated than that. Voices mingle, they meld, into an uneven drone, a kind of left-hand rhythm for the melody. There's the far-off soprano of a page carolling lightly down distant corridors, the stiff swish of the revolving doors, high heels on a strip of marble, between carpets, the gush of sound from the street let in briefly and then cut off again. I like the sound of high-heels on marble. It is part. I think it must give a woman confidence to hear herself clicking on her way.

Funny atmosphere in lobbies. As if everyone was listening for something. We're all so conscious of each other without even admitting it by a word or glance. What would happen in this lobby if a voice were suddenly to cry out, "He'll-il-lip"? What would happen if I were to just quietly stand on my head in this fine leather chair?

What would that disagreeable man across the way do in that case? My, he's a sole one. The way he crosses his uncrosses and re-crosses his legs expresses some inner-resentment. He glances every 40 seconds at the golden clock above the main entrance. He is accusing.

But now, incredibly, his face has softened, relaxed, become warm. Wouldn't you know it would be the most beautiful girl in the world? Is there any cause in the world that can't be cured by a beautiful girl? And this one is exquisite. Just to look at her is to receive a gift. She'd have made Churchill whistle. Why do you covet this girl, Leigh-Mallory? Because she is there, sir.

Always in hotel lobbies there are the lonely people. That man there. Middle-aged, handsome, a decent intelligent face. He's walked from the elevator to the next stand. He stands there looking at the bright wall of magazine covers without really seeing them. He is aimless. He glances. Oh, so casually — at the lobby hoping to see a familiar face, but knowing he won't.

He has picked up Time and Playboy. I figured he would. I figure he will put Time on top of Playboy when he hands them to the girl behind the counter. He does. Now he goes back to the elevators, the doors close and he has gone back to solitary.

And over there at the telephones each phone is being used. They look like figures at a wailing wall, each absorbed in his own small destiny. A covey of smartly-dressed matrons goes by in a bright cascade of small talk and the heads of all the men at the phones swing independently and in garrison as they talk on.

What? Oh, you're here. High time, I'd say. No, I don't mind. I kind of enjoyed it, in fact. But you'll never know how close you came to owning a genuine leather chair.

STRETCHING THEIR LEGS

on the lawn at Shoreline Junior Secondary School are Canada Geese who are regular visitors according to school secretary Freda Meeres. She said they like to feed on the seedlings of the newly planted grass field. Just after Times photographer Bill Halkett took this shot of school board employee John Cambrey and the birds, school district employees started cutting the lawn and temporarily evicted the birds, which numbered about 100.

Townhouse Project For Saanich

A 65-unit townhouse project has been proposed in the Glenford Gardens district of Saanich.

Yorkshire Development Corporation has applied for a rezoning of the area for townhouse use. If approved by council, the development is expected to cost about $15 million.

The condominium units would be in groups of six and eight in 10 structures, plans show. Each unit would be just under 1,200 square feet, with two storeys and no basement, said a municipal official. They would be owner-occupied.

The site is situated in a recently sewered part of Saanich. Access would be from Broadway and Agnes. Plans call for an outdoor pool and recreation area.

Strong public opposition to Vancouver developer J. A. Reid's Wharf Street high-rise proposal will damage his chances of financing the scheme, say spokesmen of the Old Town Study Group.

Group members Jim Starck and Ken Lane said today it is likely mortgage companies will finance a development the public doesn't want.

Neither Starck nor Lane reacted favorably to Victoria council's recent compromise solution with Reid. The arrangement eliminated one of the three towers proposed in Reid's original project, but allowed for two higher and narrower towers.

Also agreed was that no construction would take place on the water in order to increase public access.

Starck said the compromise does not effectively increase public access.

"Psychologically, it's not public. The character of it is a massive private thing."

He said another important issue is that Reid's proposal should relate to other large-scale plans for downtown Victoria, which do not exist.

Land Values Up

If the Reid centre were built, he said, land values on nearby properties would increase, raising the desire to build more high-rises.

Lane said this would be accompanied by a decrease in the value of old buildings nearby, because developers would feel they can erect high-rises and make more money that way than by re-using Old Town.

Old Town is a name describing the area between Government, Stone and Wharf Streets from Bastion Square to Chinatown. With an $8,000 Opportunity for Youth grant from Ottawa, Starck, Lane and about 10 other persons have been preparing a pageant depicting the character and economic possibilities of the area.

Lane is an architectural student and Starck, a designer, is a former architecture instructor at the University of British Columbia.

The Old Town report will be released by Sept. 1, Starck said.

Lane said high-rises have their places in cities, but Victoria should not permit them to exceed 8 or 9 storeys. They are cheap to build and offer fast, short-term economic gains to municipal coffers.

"But the worst thing is that no one really likes them," Lane said.

He said several factors make him believe the Reid project can be stopped:

Council has "no positive belief" that high-rises are good; municipal elections are not far off, and elected officials are likely to respond to public letter-writing campaigns.

"The situation here is not that bad. It's not as though there were an entrenched power group willing to put that thing through. It's just a vacuum of ideas."

Money Problems for Reid?

Public Displeasure May Affect Investors

The Old Town Study Group's brief will outline how to preserve the area to create a mixed residential and commercial district.

Starck said the group's approach favors slow growth over many years. He said it is a misconception to think that Old Town's buildings are "just a pile of crumbling brick."

An Old Town model prepared by the group, said Starck, shows how the buildings from Douglas to Wharf streets decrease in height roughly in proportion to the downward slope of the land toward Inner Harbor.

This natural graduation, he said, should be maintained. Reid's proposed high-rises will become an obstruction compared with the surrounding buildings.

Should Reid's project be constructed, said Lane, it still would be possible to prevent other high-rises from being built downtown.

"A single mistake is better than a series of mistakes," he said.

'VICTIM' HITS AND RUNS

Robber Misses $4,000 in Cash

An unarmed masked man fled from the Tally-Ho Travelodge today after an unsuccessful robbery attempt.

The would-be robber tried to steal about $4,000 from the lodge's general manager Patrick Hungenberg who was just preparing to leave to deposit the money at the bank.

The robbery attempt occurred at 10 a.m. Hungenberg said he was about to drive away from the parking lot when he noticed a four-door silver grey compact car drive to within 15 feet of him and park at an angle.

"The car drove up about 15 feet away and the guy jumped out. He didn't say anything, but I knew what he wanted, fortunately he wasn't armed."

"I could see his intentions after a split second. It sort of dumbfounded me. He came at me, so I hit him on the left side of his head to give me enough time to get the hell out of there."

Hungenberg said the money was in a deposit sack. He carried it with him under a barrier next to his car and ran back to the lodge.

Crossing under the barrier, Hungenberg wrenched his right ankle and tore his pantleg.

He said the assailant wore a rainbow-colored toque and had a stocking over his face.

Was Hungenberg frightened?
Not at the time, but I am now. It only took about a minute."

Sooke Salmon Fry Still in Danger Following Disappointing Rainfall

More than 100,000 salmon fry in Sooke's De Mamiel Creek are still in danger because Saturday's rainfall was not nearly as heavy as in Victoria.

The low water level has forced the fry to hole up in the creek's pools. The only fresh water circulating in the pools comes through the gravel beds below creek level.

A heavy rainfall, like the 3.3 inches which fell on Victoria Saturday, would have largely alleviated the problem of water shortage, but only 10 inches fell in Sooke, according to the weather station.

As a result, draw-off water from the creek by area residents still constitutes a problem to the salmon fry.

At Meadows of the Amalgamated Conservancy Society claims that 20 of the 30 buildings drawing water do not have a permit to do so.

"Anything will help," Meadows said of Saturday's rainfall in Sooke. "It's a bit of a let-down but it's something."

Meadows had thought the rainfall in Sooke would have been even heavier than in Victoria, since the area is hilly and generally wetter.

"The one thing that could help us the most in the next little while is cloudy weather. It cuts down on evaporation."

"We've only got about another two weeks to go before we start getting more rain," he said.

"The creek doesn't need vast amounts of water to make it safe for the fry. Just the rain falling into the creek may have been enough."

Meadows filed a complaint Friday with the provincial water rights branch about the draw-off situation and says B.C. water policy needs restructuring to ensure a minimum supply of water for fish.

Under present regulations, water not already granted to a licensee can be used domestically without a licence being required. In the case of application being made for use of the same water, a list of priorities is used to determine who has the right to the water.

In order of preference, they are: domestic, water works, mineral water, irrigation, mining, industrial, power, hydraulic, storage, conservation, fluming, conveying, land improvement.

Before Saturday's rain no water could be seen in the creek, other than the pools where the fry are being kept.

Students hired under an Opportunities for Youth grant have been hand-feeding the fry in De Mamiel.

Berlin Wall—One-Way Only

HE'S WET AND VERY, VERY COLD after jumping from the CP ferry Princess Marguerite into the frigid waters off Clover Point Sunday. Lawrence Corman, 23, of San Francisco was making his second bid to enter the country illegally. He was treated in hospital for exposure and turned over to authorities. Corman was in water 15 minutes. U.S. Man Leaps Overboard To Seek Asylum in Victoria

A determined San Francisco man seeking "political asylum" vaulted over the side of the CP ferry Princess Marguerite from Seattle Sunday afternoon in his second attempt to enter the country illegally.

Lawrence Corman, 23, was in the waters off Clover Point 15 minutes shortly after noon. While the ferry circled and a boat from the pilotage office co-ordinated rescue efforts, Corman was pulled aboard a passing U.S. pleasure cruiser and turned over to authorities.

The immigration department said after an inquiry today the man was ordered back to Seattle on tonight's ferry. He will return here for a Sept. 14 hearing with counsel.

Immigration's Douglas Cook said Corman told investigators he had jumped overboard "because people with cameras were taking pictures of me." The American said he had a 4-F draft exemption and was seeking asylum here as an opponent of the U.S. political system.

DEPORTED
Corman was deported a month ago from Vancouver after he crossed illegally through the woods near Peace Arch Park on the border between Douglas, B.C., and Blaine, Wash. He was charged with evading examination by immigration authorities and ordered deported. This made him ineligible to apply through normal channels for immigrant status, unless there is intervention on his behalf by the minister of manpower and immigration.

A spokesman for the immigration department in Vancouver said this was unlikely. The department has the option to refer the case to the justice department for more charges to be laid. This also is unlikely in this case, the spokesman said.

Corman told investigators today his parents reside in Boston, but he had no identification. He said he would appear for examination with his lawyer at the Sept. 4 hearing, and would appeal the deportation order expected to be issued at that time.

Corman jumped over the rail of the Princess Marguerite when the ship passed within several hundred feet of the tip of Clover Point at 12:15 p.m. Sunday.

The water was "freezing cold, as usual," a pilotage office spokesman said, and beginning to be made rough by a fresh wind.

RADIO CALL
A marine radio call was issued to all craft in the area, and the pilotage boat sped from her float inside the breakwater while the ferry began a wide circle.

At 12:30 p.m., Corman was pulled aboard the Poppy, a cruiser from Seattle carrying visitors Joe Mulcahy, his daughter Lisa and son Mark, both 13, and Lisa's friend, Vickie Brodine, back to Seattle.

He was met by ambulance at the pilotage office at Ogden Point, carried by stretcher to St. Joseph's Hospital and treated for exposure. Police took him into custody at the hospital and lodged him overnight in city cells.

Corman was turned over to the immigration department this morning. Hospital of officials said there was "nothing physically or mentally wrong" with him, but an immigration spokesman said he appeared to be "greatly disturbed."

Some countries decided to postpone dealings until trends became clearer in major monetary centres elsewhere. In Italy, banks refused to handle commercial exchange transactions until an official rate for the dollar is set later in the day. Italian banks were handling tourist transactions, though, at the rate of 600 lire. This amounted to a dollar devaluation of four per cent.

France opened a split foreign exchange with two rates—one tightly controlled for government and legitimate commercial transactions, and the other, a free rate for tourist and speculation.

Frankfurt dealers said trading was slow.

Dollar Trade Cautious

LONDON (AP) — Foreign exchanges reopened today after a week's shutdown but trading was slow and cautious at the outset as dealers operated without a set of internationally agreed rules for the first time in 27 years.

In London, the first European market to open, the U.S. dollar was exchanged between $2.45 and $2.46, which amounted to a cut in the value of the American currency of about three per cent.

The last quotation before President Nixon's momentous action cutting the ties between the dollar and gold was $2.4194. That was at the close of business Aug. 13.

Dealers in London said trading was quiet and hesitant.

One London dealer said: "No one is at all certain just what things will go."

UP, THEN DOWN

A few minutes after the opening, the dollar strengthened slightly to $2.44 for one pound only to drop back again to $2.45.

In Tokyo, where the opening preceded London because of the time difference, dealers reported trading was calm with the Bank of Japan taking in about $10 million compared with the hundreds of millions absorbed on most days last week.

Prices on the Tokyo stock market moved down again because of the uncertainty over the yen.

In Frankfurt, the dollar fell back to about the level it held Aug. 13—3.4250 marks against 3.4225 previously. Today's quotation indicated a sharp strengthening of the dollar in West Germany, compared with the rate of 3.3875 marks that banks and travel agencies were giving tourists at the close of business last Friday.

Frankfurt dealers said trading was slow.

Fee Freedom Offered If Costs Checked

Premier Bennett said Sunday that B.C. doctors can have freedom of action in setting their own fee schedules providing they agree to limit the annual medicare cost increase.

Bennett said he was referring to fee schedules when he said last week in Dawson-Creek that doctors can have full freedom of action if they agree to control costs.

"Most people have construed that this freedom of action dealt with the doctors' right to look after their patients and practise throughout B.C.," Bennett said.

"At no time has the government considered these matters. What I actually said is that the doctors would have the freedom of action to set their own schedule of fees, if they agree to limit the annual increase in the cost of medicare."

He said there was no misunderstanding of the speech by those who heard it, but most people in B.C. had the "wrong impression" of the Dawson-Creek talk.

Ottawa May Scrap Bomarc Missile Base

OTTAWA (CP) — Scrapping of Canada's anti-bomber Bomarc missile squadrons is expected to be provided for in the defence white paper to be released Tuesday.

As well, informants said

today, the policy document likely will provide for assigning a squadron of CF-5 ground support jets to NATO's northern flank in Norway.

It may further signal the end of the heavy tank role of the Canadian troops in Germany. Indications are that the present, aging Centurion will not be replaced by another heavy tank when its life expires.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald has said the white paper will address itself specifically to Canada's partnership with the U.S. in the North American air defence command, and the question of bomber defence.

There is a question of whether Canada is arming itself "against an attack which is a decreasing probability," he has stated in reference to what some believe is a declining threat from Soviet manned bombers.

NO NEED FOR BOMBERS?

Speculation is that the white paper will outline a plan for scrapping the nuclear-armed Bomarc squadrons of which were installed at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que., in 1963 as part of NORAD's defence against Soviet bombers.

Since then, Soviet strength in conventional bombers has declined in proportion to its growing strength in intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The white paper will elaborate major priorities in Canadian defence policy laid down by Prime Minister Trudeau two years ago.

Big-Four Pact Terms

Times News Services

BERLIN—Major Russian concessions are believed included in the draft of a Berlin settlement reached today by Big Four powers.

Ambassadors of the United States, Soviet Union, Britain and France emerged from a five-hour meeting and announced the agreement ending 18 months of negotiations.

Sources said the Russians agreed to accept responsibility for unimpeded access to West Berlin, favored opening the wall for West Berliners to visit East Berlin, and recognized the ties that bind West Berlin to West Germany.

The agreement will not do away with the wall, built 10 years ago to halt the flight of refugees to the west.

HEMMED IN

East Berliners will continue to be hemmed in by it, unless they are communist officials on official visit, the sources said.

The agreement calling for the lifting of the East German ban on visits by West Berliners, however, will affect some 500,000 who have relations on the other side of the wall.

The Soviet Union also agreed to end harassment of traffic which must pass 110 miles through East Germany to get to Berlin.

In return the Russians would be permitted to open a consulate in West Berlin and there would be a limitation on West German political activity in West Berlin.

The pact must be ratified by the four governments but no difficulties are anticipated. All delegates expressed satisfaction with the results.

Details of the agreement were not immediately released but diplomats leaked some of the terms to reporters.

For West Berlin it "should mean an end to 23 years of harassment and tension, clarification of its disputed status and the chance for its citizens to travel freely to and from the city, and once more into East Berlin and East Germany."

IT'S A GIRL FOR BERNADETTE

BELFAST (AP) — Bernadette Devlin, 24-year-old member of Parliament from Northern Ireland and tireless civil rights campaigner, gave birth to a daughter in Naghera-felt Hospital today.

The unwed mother and the child were reported well, although the birth had not been expected for another month.

Miss Devlin's past week of day-and-night political meetings, whipping up civil disobedience to the central government in the current wave of violence, may have affected the timetable.
